Band Battle Is Cut Short By Brawls

Teeners Sent Home Early From San Rafael Festival

The courthouse square in downtown San Rafael was rockin' last night as more than 3,000 teen-agers jammed the streets to hear a battle of bands and were sent home early after a series of disturbances broke out.

The scheduled three-hour "Battle of the Combos," from 9 p.m. to midnight, was cut short at 11 p.m. after a series of fireworks were set off in the middle of Fourth Street, a few minor brawls erupted and several cars were damaged.

Sheriff's deputies arrested Steven Richard Leahy, 18, of 129 Granada Drive, Corte Madera, after he allegedly threw a punch at deputy Richard Keaton, when the officer attempted to break up a fist fight.

Leahy was booked in county jail on charges of drunkenness, disturbing the peace, resisting a peace officer and battery. Bail was set at $550.

His was the only arrest reported.

Jack Alvarado, manager of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, today thanked the San Rafael police for doing a good job in controlling the flareup.

He said that since the "Battle of the Bands" contest could not be finished, each of the combos was automatically awarded $25.

MILLING AROUND

The rock 'n roll session had been underway about an hour-and-a-half when the youths began to mill around and there were sporadic disturbances.

Alvarado sent out the word to the rock 'n roll groups on the tail end of the program "to cut it short."

At about 11 p.m., Myron King, master of ceremonies, announced that the show was over . . . "discontinued because of interruptions by a few people."

Sheriff's deputies and San Rafael police officers then moved in to disperse the crowd and clear Fourth Street, which had been jammed from A Street to Court Street.

AREA CLEARED

The majority of the teen-agers cleared the area, but minor skirmishes broke out at Court and Fourth streets and Macy's parking lot. They were quickly broken up by officers.

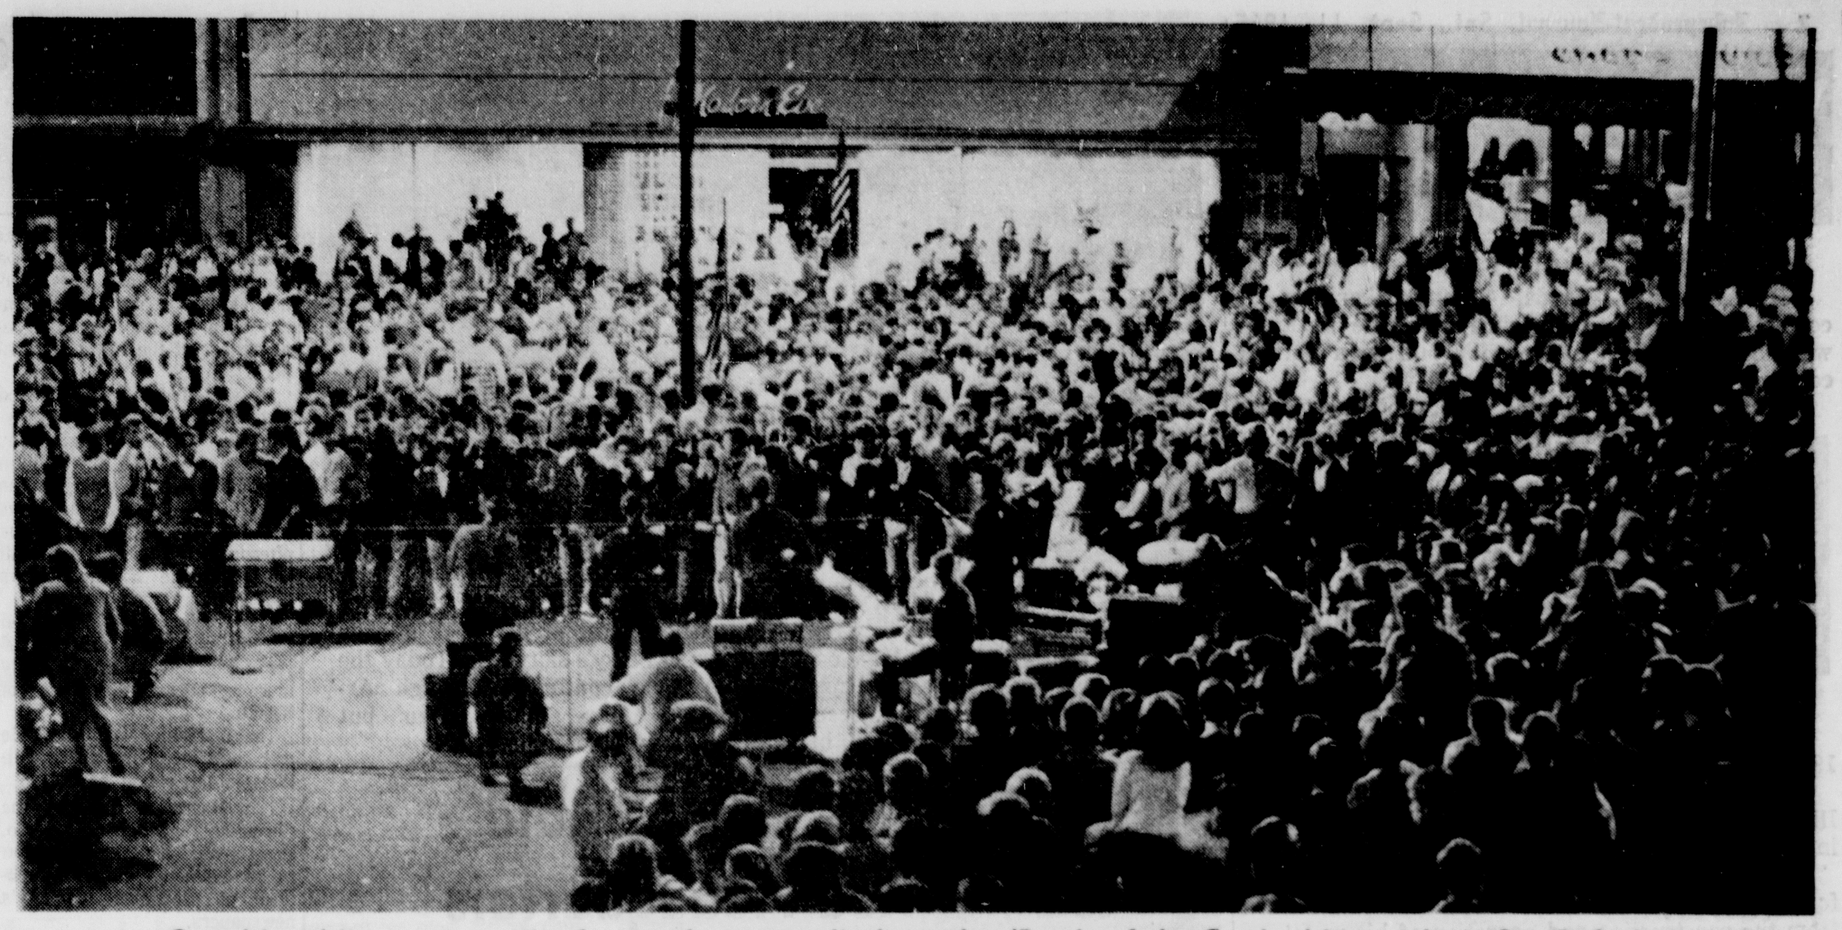

One teen-ager, who came to dance, said she was disapponted at the outcome and blamed the trouble on the few who didn't come to hear the music or dance, but just to make trouble.

There was very little dancing, except for an occasional soloist who was carried away by the beat.

There were about 15 sheriff's deputies and about 15 San Rafael police officers on duty and the California Highway Patrol was called in to circle the perimeter of the downtown area.

There was a rumor yesterday that there might be an outbreak of racial disturbances at the Police Seek Suspects In Bar Slaying

Police have some "real good suspects" they want to question in connection with Monday's robbery and slaying at the Mission Inn restaurant and bar, police inspector Richard Douglas disclosed today.

Douglas would not elaborate further on the men being sought, but admitted that police felt the bandits who fatally shot bartender Mario Ferrari, 52, were familiar with the operation of the Mission Inn.

"We are working on the assumption that they live in the area or that they at least spent some time in the area because they seemed familiar with the Mission Inn," Douglas said.

He said the gunmen knew restaurant and bar co-owner Leo Albertoni by his first name, knew where the restaurant safe was located and knew that bartender Ferrari was likely to be carrying a lot of money on his person.

Douglas said his men found spent shell casings in the area where Ferrari was shot. He refused to disclose the caliber

Moderate Quake Felt In County

A moderate earthquake which shook the East Bay area, cutting off power and knocking one lad out of bed, was felt in Marin yesterday at about 2:28 p.m.

The University of California seismograph office said the tremor with a Richter scale reading of five centered five miles east of Mount Diablo.

Alexander Watson of 156 Blackstone Drive, Marinwood, said that the shock jolted his house and toppled his 2-year-old son, Scott, from the edge of his bed.

Scott, who was having his nap, was toppled off, but didn't wake up, Watson said.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Co. office in San Rafael reported today that there were no power failures caused by the earthquake in the county.

"I don't think anyone here even knew there was an earthquake until they read it in the paper," said Richard W. Horst.

Bagley Urges State Purchase For Tam Park

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, has urged that the legislature in its special session order purchase of portions of Frank Valley in Marin for addition to Tamalpais State Park.

Bagley, in a letter to Gov. Edmund G. Brown, noted that this purchase was deferred in the regular legislative session pending an over-all look at state park projects.

The assemblyman also notes that about $45 million remains in the park acquisition bond fund. He describes the Frank Valley area near the entrance to Muir Woods National Monument as a "volatile"" area, subject to the threat of subdivision.

Typhoon Kills 44 Persons In Japan Rampage

TOKYO (UPI) — Typhoon Shirley killed at least 44 persons, injured 838 and inflicted heavy property damage during its rampage across Japan, it was announced today.

Twenty-two persons officially listed as missing are feared dead.

National police headquarters said the 173-mile-an-hour winds of the typoon yesterday caused casualties and damage in 39 provinces. It damaged about 4,000 homes and flooded about 120,000.

A total of 2,700 passenger and freight trains suspended service Friday. The nationalized railway system estimated its typhoon losses at more than $5.5 million.

Railroadmen Stage Strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — Members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen staged a surprise strike last night against the Santa Fe Railroad.

A Santa Fe spokesman said the strike apparently went into effect at 12 midnight EDT. He said it was impossible to immediately determine what effect the strike would have or how many men were involved.

At North Chillicothe, Ill., a freight division point on the Santa Fe, Robert Graham, local chairman of the union, said, "the strike is a legal walkout, authorized by Brotherhood President Charles Luna. Grievances included unsettled work rules which were served under the Railway Labor Act in 1956".

Hurricane Betsy Moves On Through Arkansas

The two-week-old storm that was born off the northeast shoulder of South America claimed at least 29 lives in a meandering S-shaped path through Florida, across the Gulf of Mexico into Louisiana.

More were missing and feared dead and the injured numbered in the hundreds. The storm also mauled Mississippi's Gulf Coast.

At least 18 persons were dead in Louisiana alone and more bodies were expected to be found in receding flood waters in and around New Orleans.

Eight persons died and three were missing in Florida; three persons were killed in highway crashes on storm-swept highways in Arkansas.

At midnight EDT, Betsy was in southeast Arkansas, with winds dropping to 30 miles an hour — still strong enough to cause damage. The weather bureau warned cotton crops would suffer.

Rains up to two inches threatened flash flooding in eastern Arkansas as the storm drifted northeast toward western Mississippi and Tennessee.

Damage was so great to cities, farms and the sugar cane crop in Louisiana that it would run into "the millions and millions of dollars," according to Gov. John J. McKeithen. The governor, almost sleepless for two days, planned to issue figures later today.

President Johnson on a swift tour of ravaged New Orleans yesterday was visibly shaken by the devastation and the suffering. Back in Washington, he threw the full weight of the federal government into rebuilding Louisiana and the state was declared a major disaster area.

Federal troops from Ft. Polk moved in to help.

Residents of low - lying districts at Lake Pontchartrain in New Orleans remained trapped for the second day by high flood waters.

The Coast Guard called out an extra 100 men to help save them.

National Guardsmen in amphibious "ducks" rode to houses and chopped holes in roofs to bring out men, women and children, some of them so petrified with fright that they struggled against their rescuers.

"We had to pass an elementary school whose second floor was full of humanity," reported UPI correspondent Edward Cocke after a ride through the flooded district near St. Claude Ave.

"We had to pass them up. Other people farther on were in worse trouble."

Indian, Pakistani Armor Battling

Both Sides Claim Victory In Fight

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Indian and Pakistani armored columns and planes fought sharp but inconclusive battles of attrition along the border near Lahore today while their air forces spread the war over thousands of miles. Each side claimed victories.

The reports said one Pakistani armored column reached the suburbs of Ferozepore 10 miles inside India and a second drove well past Khem Karan, a town 11 miles inside India and 13 miles northwest of Ferozepore on the highway leading to the Indian city of Amritsar.

Aerial dogfights were reported over Amritsar and Ferozepore.

Reports from Dacca, the capital of East Pakistan a thousand miles to the east, said the Indian air force carried out heavy bomb attacks on East Pakistan bases at Lalmonirhat and Thakurgaon, 275 miles to the north, in apparent preparation for invasion. Foreigners prepared to leave.

Pakistan planes ranged to the far northeast areas of India, attacking a vital bridge across the Brahmaputra River in Assam but failed to destroy it. The bridge is a key link in India's defense of Assam against possible Chinese Communist attack.

As each side claimed to have knocked out dozens of enemy planes and tanks peace moves continued in the capitals of the world.

The Soviet Union issued a formal appeal to India and Pakistan for a cease-fire which would "stop the tanks and silence the guns."

Tight Control Being Kept Over News

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

News correspondents trying to report the Indian-Pakistani conflict have to content themselves with briefings, communiques and radio broadcasts.

New Delhi keeps tight control over the news and only one front-line trip has been permitted. That was to southwest Kashmir, where the fighting broke out last week. It was government-conducted.

One front-line tour permitted has been in Pakistan. That was in the north and it was cut short by an Indian offensive.

In New Delhi, the news is issued in sporadic briefings and communiques that often are more frustrating than informative.

Officials at briefings refer to obscure places that cannot be found on any map, such as Moghul Hat. They make no effort to locate these areas or explain what is happening.

Chicago Crime Figure Slain

CHICAGO (AP)—Mandel (Manny) Skar, an ex-convict and an admitted crime syndicate associate, was shot and killed early today outside a parking court on the North Side.

Police said the 41-year-old former motel owner had just returned from a restaurant to the plush Lake Shore Drive apartment building where he lived. Skar let his wife off at the building's front entrance and then drove his car to a car court where he was shot down.

Skar

Police said Skar's wife, Beatrice, 41, told them three men had followed their car from the restaurant. She said the men followed Skar to the car court after he dropped her off.

Skar was twice convicted on burglary charges, in 1942 and 1945, and once for mail fraud.

He opened the Sahara Inn North in Schiller Park, Ill., June 6, 1962, but it was placed in receivership in June 1963.

At the time of his death, Skar was under indictment for evading income taxes on more than $1.4 million from the construction and operation of his motel.

On the flight back to Washington an exuberant Lynda played bridge with her mother as partner and teasingly accused newswomen of drumming up a romance for her with Brent Eastman, a handsome 25-year-old medical student she met on the trip.

"He's just a nice young man," she said with a broad smile. "I'll probably never see him again."

U.S. Planes Raid Red Headquarters

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. planes raided the headquarters of a Viet Cong regiment in the Mekong Delta today, U.S. military sources said. They estimated that between 1,000 and 2,000 Communists may be trapped by the air strikes.

Associated Press photographer Horst Faas flew over the area in Chuong Thien Province. 150 miles southwest of Saigon. He reported that escape routes leading from the headquarters appeared to be cut off.

Faas said the bombings laid open wide areas of thick brush and jungle and disclosed Viet Cong bunkers.

By nightfall, U.S. aircraft had made nearly 100 strikes against the position despite 30-mile-an-hour winds and low hanging clouds. It was believed the guerrillas suffered heavy losses.

U.S. advisers said the regiment was believed to be composed of at least one hardcore Viet Cong battalion which U.S. aircraft and government troops have been seeking for weeks.

Earlier, U.S. Army helicopters assaulted 100 guerrillas believed part of the Viet Cong force, but government soldiers were not landed to engage the Communists because of heavy rains.

In another action, South Vietnamese troops killed 104 Communist guerrillas in a big operation this week involving several thousand troops in a coastal province, a U.S. military spokesman said.

U.S. Marines joined the action yesterday in Quang Nam province but fighting has slackened off and no major contact has been reported since mid-week.

The Marines were airlifted into the area after winding up a major sweep on the Batangan peninsula that reportedly killed 198 Viet Cong.

In a series of raids by Viet Cong in Long Khanh Province about 40 miles east of Saigon, the guerrillas inflicted moderate casualties on the defenders of one outpost as it was overrun but government troops retook it without engaging the Viet Cong, U.S. sources said.

Heavy government air strikes and artillery shelling were ordered against an estimated 100 Viet Cong entrenched in the Mekong Delta area near Soc Trang, about 100 miles southeast of Saigon.

San Francisco Opera Opens

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The silken opening of San Francisco's opera season last night was a traditionally resplendent extravaganza.

Some of the great names of opera sang Giordano's "Andrea Chenier," a lesser work.

The Chronicle critic, Robert Commanday, said Renata Tebaldi sang with "stunning vocalism." Richard Tucker, he said, gave "stirring meaning to the sentiments" in the role of Chenier.

Flowers were in elegant arrangements in the tiers and foyers of the Opera House.

Eucharist Is Reaffirmed; Last Church Session Set

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI today reaffirmed Roman Catholic teaching concerning the Eucharist. He said he was concerned at some theological writing on the subject.

In the third encyclical letter of his reign, the pontiff reasserted the Roman Catholic teaching that the body and blood of Jesus Christ are truly and substantially present in the consecrated bread and wine of the Eucharist.

His document, called "Misterium Fidei" — The Mystery of the Faith — was issued today as a reply to recent theological discussion on the meaning of the Eucharist.

A number of Roman Catholic theologians, especially in Holland, have been describing the bread and wine of the Eucharist as symbols. This view is similar to that held by some Protestants.

Pope Paul said in his encyclical letter he believed he had to speak out because there had been some confusion among the faithful.

The encyclical was issued as Roman Catholic prelates from around the world flocked to Rome for the final session of the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

An encyclical is a letter from the Pope to his bishops and other persons for whom he intends his message. Today's 6,500-word encyclical was addressed to all Roman Catholic bishops, priests and faithful.

It was dated Sept. 3, but was published today in the Vatican Newspaper L'Osservatore Romano.

The fourth and last council session starts Tuesday.

Contractor Goes On Lion Hunt

Contractor Michael McLean of Point Reyes Station went on a lion hunt in Contra Costa County Wednesday and came back with a 10-foot, 400-pound lioness without a struggle.

McLean and one of his bloodhounds participated in the search for three circus lionesses that escaped from their truck cage at Antioch.

Two were captured alive and the third was found floating dead in the San Joaquin River.

McLean got custody of the dead lioness, loaded her in his truck and now plans to have a lion skin rug.

Astronauts Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifteen new pilot-astronauts are being sought by the National Aeronautic and Space Administration to be trained for Project Apollo and other manned space missions. Cause Of Death

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A fracture of a tiny bone in her foot started the ailment from which actress Dorothy Dandridge died six days later, the coroner's office said. Newspaper Rumors Are Now Official

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco's newspaper readers will have only one morning paper and one afternoon paper to read next Monday as a result of a major realignment of the city's newspapers.

It was formally announced last night that the century-old San Francisco Examiner, first paper owned by William Randolph Hearst, will join the Hearst - owned Evening News Call Bulletin to publish in the afternoon. The new paper will be called the Examiner-News Call Bulletin.

The independently owned Chronicle, which also is 100 years old, will become the only morning paper in this city of 750,000.

The Examiner and Chronicle will combine their Sunday editions into a single paper.

The Hearst Corp. and the Chronicle Publishing Co. have formed a new corporation to handle non - editorial functions of producing the city's newspapers.

Randolph A. Hearst, chairman of the Hearst Corp. executive committee, said in a letter to employees of the two Hearst papers that revenues have increased, but lagged behind costs. He said both papers were operating at a loss.

"The single production plant will, hopefully, provide the economies so necessary to the maintenance of two independent and competitive editorial voices in our city," the publisher said.

A Justice Department spokesman said in Washington earlier this week that it would not challenge the Chronicle and Examiner production - sharing arrangement. He cited Hearst losses.

Union representatives in San Francisco said they were "dismayed" by the turn of events.

Russ Wagle, chairman of a joint committee which represented a dozen unions, said that the newspaper companies had pledged a moratorium on dismissals until Oct. 6. "In return," he continued, "we have pledged our cooperation with the company.

The San Francisco - Oakland Newspaper Guild, which has been negotiaing a new contract for its 1,450 members on the three papers, agreed to extend its negotiations for four weeks past the Sept. 26 expiration date of its old contract.

The council also approved an application by Mr. and Mrs. Eric Moeller to subdivide 441 Lagunitas Road into two parcels. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hanger, Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Feurstein and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee.

event, but it never materialized.

One bystander said part of the problem was that the youths in some sectors couldn't hear the music.

The bands played by the Doughboy statue in front of the courthouse.

The musical battle was sponsored by the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce as part of the San Rafael Autumn Festival, which closed with a hot dog barbecue at the courthouse this noon.

Black Point Seeks Buses

Residents of Black Point want service from Greyhound buses which at present bypass the community along Route 37.

Black Point Improvement Club decided last night they would ask the company to bring buses about a mile into the community to prevent people having to walk the distance from the main highway, said Mrs. Elaine Jensvold.

The club also decided to arrange a dance in Novato for the building fund on Oct. 30.

of the casings but said they may have come from one of the two revolvers the robbers took from Albertoni's apartment while they held him captive there for two hours.

Douglas said police have traced the trail of the gunmen, after they ran out of the bar with $1,267—the Mission Inn's weekend receipts—to a point near the corner of C and First Streets. Douglas would not say how this was accomplished.

All of the suspects come from anonymous telephone call tips, Douglas said. "Some of them look like real good suspects," he said, "but we have not been able to find them to talk with them yet.

He said that four suspects he once considered as "very good" have been cleared after interrogation by police.

Bartender Ferrari was shot three times in the back when he ran from the dining room where the robbers were holding him, Albertoni and another bartender, Alfred Casey.

Before that, Albertoni was knocked unconscious, bound with copper wiring and held two hours by the gunmen while they searched his room for the combination to the restaurant safe. The owner could not remember the combination.

Ship Safe, Officer On Way Home

A Merchant Marine officer from Lagunitas is en route home aboard a ship that was reported sunk in Viet Nam, his wife said yesterday.

Mrs. Agnes Vincilione of Lagunitas received word that her husband, Lucien, is headed for the United States aboard the Young America. The vessel, operated by Waterman Shipping Co. of Moblie, Ala., two weeks ago was rumored sunk off Saigon.

Vincilione is third officer on the Young America, which sailed from Port Chicago in June with a cargo of ammunition, stopping at Subic Bay in the Philippines, at Bangkok in Thailand, and then at Saigon.

In a letter to his wife, Vincilione disclosed the source of the report of the ship's sinking. As the Young America anchored at Saigon, a sampan was rowed up to the vessel, and its occupants started to clamber aboard. Guards on the ammunition ship warned them away, opened fire and sank the sampan, but one man had got aboard and attempted sabotage.

Bridge Blaze 'Up In Smoke'

A Marin County fire truck drove the length of the Richmond Bridge yesterday in search of a fire, but found none.

A call at 3:05 p.m. from Gate 18 on the bridge reported "a fire on the bridge," but when the truck reached the toll gate on the Contra Costa County side of the bridge, the driver was informed there was no fire.

The truck was turned around and brought home. No toll fees were charged.

The big roller, owned by Ghilotti Bros. of San Rafael, is inspected here by Officer Jack Laone of the San Rafael police.

CONTROL

ficials put out communiques that often are vaguely worded. Important areas of the front may not even be mentioned.

The Indian radio is monitored for clues as to what may be happening.

In the Pakistani capital at Rawalpindi, twice - daily briefings are held in the crowded press room of the Information Ministry. Radio Pakistan invariably leaks the news first, so monitoring is necessary.

In the briefings, the information officer and the military information officers never give details, such as the size of units involved, distances, or casualties. The same is true in India.

Photographs are not allowed in Pakistan, even of a trench outside a hotel, unless an escort officer is present.

Pakistani officials are promising correspondents they will be allowed to go to the front, but no trips have been forthcoming aside from the one trip to the northern front.

Pakistani officials impose censorship, and this has sometimes caused a delay in dispatches.

There has been no report on whether there is censorship in New Delhi.

Meeting Cancelled

The Stinson Beach Water District board's meeting today was cancelled from lack of a quorum, board secretary Mrs. Harriet M. Gree reported. No new date for the meeting has been set, she said.

Rejected Baby Ward Of Court

Judge Thomas F. Keating in Marin County Juvenile Court yesterday declared a five-month-old illegitimate baby, rejected by his unwed mother and San Francisco authorities, a ward of the court.

The judge directed that the child remain in a Marin County foster home until permanent placement can be made. The child, suffering from a heart defect, had been shifted between Oakland, where he was born, and San Francisco where the welfare department refused to take jurisdiction after learning of the ailment.

Last Aug. 20, Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Juvenile Court tentatively ordered the baby kept in the Marin County home pending yesterday's ruling.

Fairfax Youth Hurt In Cycle Accident

Stephen Schaffer, 16, of 25 Inyo Avenue, Fairfax, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a cut leit knee and multiple scrapes and bruises after his northbound motorcycle collided with a car at the corner of San Anselmo Avenue and Merced Avenue in San Anselmo.

Police said Schaffer hit the car driven by Louis Palazzi, 71, of 27 Merced Avenue, as Palazzi tried to turn off San Anselmo onto Merced.

WAR

President Mohammed Ayub Khan, renewed Soviet offers to use its good offices in mediating the dispute over Kashmir. The Foreign Ministry called a rare press conference to announce the move.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson called his cabinet to an all-day conference tomorrow at his country estate at Chequers to discuss the war between two members of the British Commonwealth. A joint peace appeal is expected from all Commonwealth leaders.

United Nations Secretary General Thant wound up his peace talks with Ayub Khan in Rawalpindi and left by plane for New Delhi to confer with Shastri. So far his efforts were blocked by Pakistan's demands for a plebiscite in predominantly Moslem Kashmir and India's flat refusal to consider such a vote in what it claims as Indian territory.

India disclosed today that Pakistani F86 Sabrejets attacked the key Bagdogra airfield barely 50 miles from the Himalayan kingdom of Sikkim Friday. Chinese Communist troop concentrations are barely 30 miles away in Tibet.

PENNILESS SHOPPING AT THE SUPERMARKET—

A computerized marketing system that would do away with the need for carrying money to the store was described this week at a scientific conference by Dr. L. R. Weisberg of the RCA laboratories at Princeton, N. J. The lady of the house need only pop down to the super with a magnetized credit card. Then walking the aisles, she would stop to insert the plastic card into a slot below a televised picture of the items she wants. By the time she's finished selecting the entire purchase will be ready at the checkout counter and a transport belt does the rest—gently, it is hoped, depositing the groceries in her car at the exit, as shown by I-J artist Jack Lucey's illustration. Her card will have set off the store's integrated circuit computer system, checked her bank account, totaled the price and deducted the amount from her checking account. Habitual check-cashers at the supermarket may be out of luck, however. . .

Boot Moves Lower

As the boot rises in fashion's esteem, it is actually moving lower on the leg, reports Leather Industries of America. Most popular heights to be reached this season will be ankle and below-calf levels, so flattering with the new shorter skirts. Where taller boots are seen, they will be leg-hugging and simple, keeping fashion focus on the beauty of the leather.

Freshman Coeds Tempted To Pack Too Many Clothes

By EUNICE FARMER

If this is your first year away at school, you'll be tempted to take too many clothes, especially on the dressy side. Be sure to check on the type clothes worn at your campus. Each school is different.

Take a good look at your last year's wardrobe and see where you can add a new blouse, sweater, or jacket to coordinate with what you have. Space is one of the biggest problems, so you must choose wisely and coordinate. Corduroy, velveteen, wool and wool blends are the most popular fabrics because of the sturdiness of the fabric and they need little or no care.

Stockings to match is the latest fashion on any campus. Our pattern companies are right up to date with a pattern for the stockings you can make yourself. Choose a short A-line skirt and wear it with a matching sweater-blouse and long stockings for that total look.

TAILOR TRIX winner; Mrs. H. J. Murphy, Alma, Mich., is this week's winner of a tailor trix pressing board for this suggestion.

"I have found that when making any type of garment out of knitted fabric or stretch fabric, if I make the sleeve and back lining on the bias, there is more give and the garment is much more comfortable."

Will you please tell me how to determine the direction of the thread entering the needle of a sewing machine? What is meant by the last thread guide?

MRS. T. S.

DEAR MRS. T. S.:

Most every sewing machine has a little hook or guide just above the needle. The direction of the hook, in other words the side it appears on, is usually a sure way to know which way the machine should be threaded.

The sewing machine needle must also be placed in properly. The rounded part of the needle (which also has a very fine groove at the center) must be placed on the correct side or the thread will break as you stitch. The rounded side of the needle must be on the side where you will thread the machine. The little groove is actually a guide for the thread to follow as the machine is stitching.

Will you tell me the correct side to place the buttonholes in the back of little girls' blouses? I have seen a difference between the patterns and the ready-made blouses.

MRS. M. B.

DEAR MRS. M. B.:

Apparently it really doesn't matter which side you place the buttons. After your letter, I checked both ready-made clothes and patterns for children and adults and I have seen either side used. If the buttons are in front, the right front buttons over the left fron on women's clothes. As I've said many times before, rules are made to be broken. At a recent fashion show of expensive, high-fashion clothes, a designer coat was actually buttoned from the left to right, the same as in men's fashions. So you see, even if you make a mistake, you can always say you decided to do it the way an expensive garment was made. Who'll know you didn't do it on purpose?

Will you please tell me where I can obtain some patterns of formal dresses? I have looked in all available pattern books and found none that appealed to me.

MRS. B. McB.

DEAR MRS. B. McB.:

If you find a pattern that appeals to you, even though it isn't pictured in the long length, you may use it and always add the additional length you need.

THE TREES THAT DIDN'T BECOME POWER POLES

In the land of Lucas Valley there were many, many trees. They loved the hills, the creeks, the wonderful climate. But one day a man named Eichler said, "I'm going to build beautiful houses here." The trees became frightened. They thought, "We're going to be changed into ugly power poles with wires running through our branches." Mr. Eichler heard about their troubles. He made a decision. In a clear voice he said, "The trees will remain! All utilities will be underground. There will not be one power pole or wire anywhere in Lucas Valley." The trees were happy. Mr. Eichler was happy. Most important, the people about to live in Lucas Valley were happy. If you like trees instead of power poles, you'll be happy in an Eichler home at Lucas Valley.

Newspapers Must Keep Up With Times, Competition

EVERY NEWSPAPERMAN and many newspaper readers must have reflected this week on the nature of the fatal illness which has afflicted so many of our big metropolitan newspapers, the latest case being just across the bay.

It is easy to blame the graphic arts trade unions. They have built up a mountain of uneconomic, make-work feather-bedding practices over the decades. And their so-called fringe benefits have grown to astronomical proportions. They defend and protect unproductive workers.

The cost of all this is a staggering burden.

But it isn't the sole reason that big newspapers become unprofitable.

THE PUBLISHING INDUSTRY as a whole, and particularly newspaper publishing, was slow to adopt new ways of doing things.

Until very recently it could be said that any printer's great-grandfather in the trade could, if he were still alive, step right into his great-grandson's job—there had been so little technological change in printing in half a century.

In the past five years, the technology has finally begun to change.

Incidentally, the Independent-Journal proudly claims to be a leader among far-western newspapers in adopting new processes.

For the most part, the San Francisco metropolitan newspapers have been laggards in technological advance.

Some of the graphic arts trade unions have, at least indirectly, resisted and obstructed technological advance.

When a new piece of machinery comes along that will with one attendant become as productive as two men using previous methods, like as not the union will insist that two or three men be employed to oversee the new one-man machine.

So the efficient new machine winds up being as costly or even more costly than the old process; progress is stymied.

In this way the zeal of graphic arts trade unions to make work for their members ends up "killing the goose that lays the golden egg."

But, to repeat, unreasonable conditions imposed by unions are not the only reasons for the decline of big metropolitan newspapers.

COMPETITION IS A big factor.

The skeptics and the critics of the press insist that press monopoly is on the rise.

Around the Bay Area they like to point to the Oakland Tribune as "dominating" the East Bay and to the Independent-Journal as "dominating" the North Bay.

In San Francisco now there will be cries of "monopoly!" raised against the Chronicle-Examiner togetherness.

These skeptics and critics who cry monopoly proceed on a false assumption. They erroneously assume that the press has no competition from other communications media.

They ignore the competition that exists for the readers' time and for the advertisers' dollar.

Look at the facts of the situatiton. Add up all the dollars spent to advertise products and services in the Bay Area. You have to start with national network TV commercials which advertisers buy to reach local viewers. Same goes for national magazine advertising.

You must throw in billboard advertising expenditures and so-called novelty items like paper matches and ballpoint fountain pens with firm names imprinted on them.

And the cost of that bundle of stuff you get in the mail (addressed to "boxholder") must be included.

Nearly all of the multitude of Bay Area radio stations exist on advertising dollars. Local TV advertising cannot be ignored.

All this total of advertising money once was available largely to newspapers; now it is not. The competition has got it.

Newspapers, especially the big metropolitan ones, have suffered.

IT'S THE SAME STORY with readers' time. TV occupies the mind and eyes of people who otherwise could be counted upon to spend more time studying their daily newspapers.

Newspapers have had to pay for costly improvements and additions in content so as to compete successfully for readers' time. The cost has added to the economic suffering of the press, especially the nation's newspapers.

But we can console ourselves with the observations that despite the decline in the number and variety of newspapers, the quality and size of the remaining ones continue to improve and expand.

GIVES FORTUNE TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

A retired postman on a $64-a-month pension gave an inheritance of a quarter of a million dollars to two school libraries in Ohio because he thought "it was the honorable thing to do."

He had received this amount from the estate of his deceased brother, who left no will.

Whata prompted this childless mail carrier was a letter he discovered in which his brother expressed a desire to help the village's 1,100 school children.

"A judge and five attorneys told me I didn't have to do what I did," he said. "The important thing is I know it was the honorable thing to do, and it's the least I can do in honor of my brother."

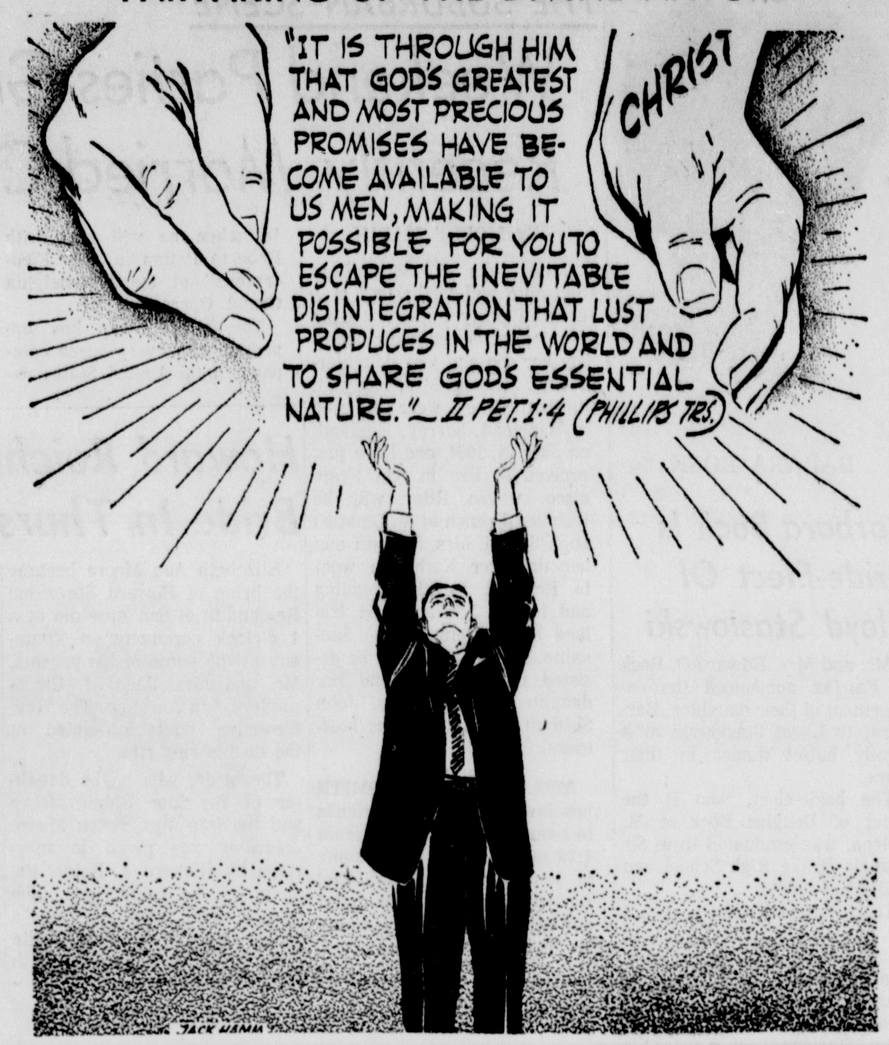

Those who, for love of God and their fellow men, live by such a high standard of conduct make an irreplacable contribution to the good of all.

Far from dodging opportunities to show extra generosity, recognize in them a blessing.

"Let us walk becomingly as in the day."
(Romans 13:13)

Let me be quick to show justice and love, O Lord, and not need to be reminded.

PARTAKING OF THE DIVINE NATURE

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

More Local Church Stories Preferred

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I have studied the "Church Page" for Sept. 4, 1965, and want to give some evaluation.

First, on a whole it is good, the articles are of wide interest and are acceptably written.

I read the article on "Youth Group to Present Unusual Fare" and think that a staff photo on set at rehearsal and a more colorful story might have been of greater interest and might have helped a worthy cause.

Also, there are 180 column inches on the page — 69¼ inches were used for articles proper, of this 69¼, 34¼ (or 49 per cent) inches was given for syndicated articles. Maybe the fault lies in that our local churches are not submitting feature stories.

I know I've been critical, but as I tried to say in beginning on the whole the page is good.

Feed, Cure People; Don't Torture Them

Editor, Independent-Journal:

May I coment through your columns on letters by H. M. Worley and Hubert O. Pessner (Aug. 31) who tell of an instance of Communist atrocity somewhere in Laos, some years ago, in the days of the highly respected Dr. Tom Dooley.

A warning against the spread of one-sided atrocity stories remains valid. Six million instances could be cited of civilians slaughtered by starvation, torture, gas or incineration by the Nazis during the second World War. As for Viet Nam, the press has at various times published stories and photographs of the torture of Viet Cong prisoners by the South Vietnamese.

The one source quoted by Mssrs. Worley and Pessner does seem impressive. However, whether or not any one particular incident occurred is somewhat beside the point. What is basic is the overall approach to the worldwide problem of upheaval in the underdeveloped nations. Surely those who believe that this problem can be solved without recourse to arms, by attacking the causes of unrest in the illiteracy, disease and hunger — which all of us must agree exist—are entitled to a courteous and serious hearing.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

FROM PARIS comes the story of a young French boy and girl who were exchanging kisses in a parked car. The auto horn, stuck on a high note, was sending its piercing warning all over the neighborhood. The young couple obviously didn't notice, but the angry neighbors did — and summoned a gendarme. To his remonstrances, the boy only took out of his pocket a scrap of paper and wrote, "I love her very much." The girl smiling happily, wrote beneath this, "We are going to be married." They were deaf mutes.

"There are two kinds of men who never amount to very much: those who cannot do what they are told, and those who can do nothing else."—Sam Himmell.

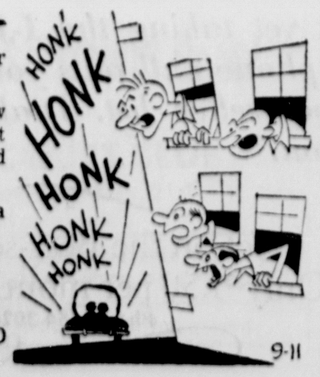

"Some people see things as they are and say WHY. I dream things that never were and say WHY NOT."—Bernard Shaw.

"I tried to join the war on poverty, but couldn't pass the fiscal."—Bob Hope.

"Youth is not a time of life. It is a state of mind."—Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

A RECENT rural newspaper poll disclosed that among farm folk, at least, Longfellow's "A Psalm of Life," written in 1839, is still by a wide margin, the favorite American short poem. To refresh your memory, the first two verses are:

"Tell me not in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream!
For the soul is dead that slumbers,
And things are not what they seem.
Life is real! Life is earnest!
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul."

Here Is A Guide To Show Difference Between Sexes

NEW YORK (AP) — There has always been a difference between the sexes, and most people would like to see that difference continue.

But as we get deeper into the second half of the 20th Century, it is becoming increasingly difficult for an innocent bystander to tell the sexes apart.

IN LOOKS, dress, conduct and conversation men and women are getting more and more alike. If things get worse before they get better—and they probably will—Congress may have to step in to reduce the confusion. It might, for example, pass a law requiring every human being to wear identifying "he" or "she" signs on their clothing, fore and aft.

While it is no longer possible to be certain of another person's sex at first sight, there are some ways to make informed guesses.

Here are a few hints for the perplexed:

IF IT PAYS alimony it is 99 per cent likely to be male. If it spends alimony it is 99 per cent likely to be female.

If it says it knows its rights, it's a man. If it prefers to recite the wrongs done to it, it is a woman.

Does it have three credit cards in its wallet? Probably a man. Does it have six department store charge plates in its purse? Undoubtedly a woman.

Does it pretend to be afraid at the sight of a mouse? It's a lady. Does it generally act like a rat? It's a gentleman.

IF IT LIKES to recall every detail of its wedding, it's a wife. If it would rather forget the whole thing, it's a husband.

If it looks camouflaged blue over the eyelids, it may be a playgirl. If it looks honest blue under the eyes, it is probably a playboy.

If it says, "It's your duty to punish the children—after all, they are yours, too," it's a wife. But if it actually does go ahead and punish the children, it is probably still the wife.

If, when it combs its long hair, it hangs its head to one side as it looks in the mirror, it is a young girl. If, when it combs its long hair, it holds its head level as it stares in the mirror, it is a young male beatnik.

IF ONE SAYS, "I had a hard day at the office," and the other says, "I had a worse one," there are four possibilities:

A. They are two working guys.

B. They are two working gals.

C. They are a guy and a gal.

D. They are a husband and wife who both share in the task of bringing home the family bacon. In this case, the one who kicks its shoes off first is the woman and the one who lies down on the sofa is the man.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Country Confident About War But Worried About Settlement

WASHINGTON — The questions which audiences around the country put to a Washington correspondent show three things about current U. S. opinion:

1. That President Johnson has won the confidence of the nation in his conduct of the war in Viet Nam. There are very few exceptions.

2. That he has not won the confidence of the nation over the kind of settlement he might accept at a peace conference. There are wide and frequent reservations on this point.

3. That the American people feel very let down that the United Nations has taken no stand with respect to aggression in Viet Nam and are puzzled that the president has not pressed the issue more strongly.

This leaves the strong impression that the Johnson administration will continue to have full public support for whatever must be done to defend South Viet Nam successfully, but that there are great anxieties in the country that all the sacrifices of the war could be thrown away in a peace settlement that will not stand up against Communist erosion.

THERE IS NO evidence that the campus protests, the teach-in critics or the peace-at-any-price advertisements have had any significant impact on public opinion. There are some who honestly dissent from the president's course, but they are more than offset by others who argue that he should be conducting the war more vigorously and, if necessary, with greater risk.

All kinds of questions are raised by audiences concerning the difficulty of making any settlement in Viet Nam really stick after the U. S. withdraws its forces, as the administration has said we would. Here many reservations come out and the heart of them is the feeling that any negotiated settlement will only be a breathing spell for the Communists, that they have no intention of giving up their plan to take over Viet Nam and will succeed in doing so unless the United States guarantees by military presence whatever agreements are reached.

More questions are asked on this subject than on any other aspect of Viet Nam. They suggest that the American people are not worried that President Johnson will press too hard a war but are worried that he may accept too soft a peace. This is the most dangerous political pitfall the president must avoid, because nothing could be worse than to have all the pain and struggle of the war go down the drain of an unworkable peace. On this point public opinion is anxious, uncertain, and constructively skeptical.

ANOTHER QUESTION which comes up is this: "Would anything be gained by allowing Red China in the U.N.?"

The question could as well be asked: "Would anything be gained by taking into the U.N. another country openly supporting aggression?"

The fact is that Peking has never shown any interest in joining the U.N.; it commended Indonesia for withdrawing from the U.N.

BARKER ON CHINA

The Lingo Of Peking —A Battle Of Isms

By GEORGE BARKER

PEKING'S PROPAGANDA is redundant, cliche-ridden and stuffily self-righteous. But it is interesting — partly because of the battle of the isms. Any ism except Marxism-Leninism is bad. They never mention the term "Maoism."

Americans are accused of imperialism, neo-colonialism and racism to the point of boredom. But Peking's propaganda mills grind out its choicest, juciest invective when writing about the Soviet Union. Both Peking and Moscow claim to posses the true faith and to be the staunch upholders of Marxism-Leninism.

They slander and impugn each other with wild abandon and quote Communist scripture to prove their points. When Khrushchev was in power in Russia, his retorts had zing and color, but even then for downright name-calling and mud-slinging Peking was in a class by itself.

THE DIRTIEST NAME in Peking's lexicon is "revisionism." "Titoism" is the ultimate in revisionism. Therefore, it is twice as dirty as plain revisionism. Equally scurrilous is "Khrushchevism." Currently, the Reds in Peking are damning the Reds in Moscow by accusing them of "Khrushchevism without Krushchev!"

The Soviet Union is guilty of other isms too, according to the Chinese. The deadly sin of "great power Chauvinism" is laid at Russia's door. The Chinese search the murky shadows of communism's past to search out moderates and weaklings (the same thing to Peking) to tack an ism on and accuse the Soviets of it.

The Chinese propagandists share with the John Birch Society a hatred of "liberalism."

ANOTHER READLY ISM is "Opportunism." Any one accused of this crime must immediately recant, publicly and abjectly, or prepare to have his thoughts remolded. "Remolding is often a euphemism for jail or a work camp.

Among party cadres, that is, the party members who make a career of working with the people, "commandism" is to be avoided at all costs. The idea is persuasion. Patience. Lead them like sheep. But don't command them. This has a built-in safety factor. If something goes wrong, the poor stupes have only themselves to blame because the final decision was their own, wasn't it? No "yes, buts" permitted.

These are but a few of the isms that Peking opposes—just a few among many. If one wished, he could almost write a book about them, but I doubt that it would ever be a best-seller.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

The three-mile-long eastern half of the five and one-half mile Richmond-San Rafael Bridge was completed as workmen swung into position a 66-foot section which connected the two piers of the east cantilever. Only the gap over the main navigation channel remained to be closed.

State Sen. John F. McCarthy told KTIM radio listeners that Marin County could have a rapid transit system within 16 months if the Bay Area Rapid Transit Commission is handed a recommendation by its consulting engineer detailing a particular type of transit and its routes and if all people involved can agree this is the proper system.

Spirit Of Renewal Hoped For At Ecumenical Meet

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The bishops of the Roman Catholic Church gather here next week to make decisions in Latin that will be translated into a hundred languages.

When the Ecumenical Council opens its fourth and final session in St. Peter's Basilica on Tuesday, the bishops will shape the future of the Catholic Church and the opinion of the church held by outsiders.

Dispute among the prelates lies ahead on such major questions as freedom of worship, birth control, the morality of nuclear armaments, the church's government and her marriage with the modern world. They will not easily be resolved.

Although some of the five tracts already promulgated have gained good will outside the church, like the third sessions decree on promoting Christian unity, many Protestants and orthodox believers—along with Jews, Arabs, Hindus and non-believers — are waiting to see if the council lives up to the spirit of renewal and outgoingness in which the late Pope XXIII called it early in 1959.

Many Catholic faithful are equally anxious for a good outcome. They know that the shape of their religious lives for decades to come depends on the reforms the council makes in schools, religious orders, missionaries and the life of laymen.

The last council took place in 1870 and bound all Catholics forever to the dogma of papal infallibility. Another council might not be held until the next millenium.

Calling a council—the 21st in church history — came to Pope John in old age, "as a spontaneous flower of an unexpected spring." He hoped the council would renew the Catholic Church so that "without spot and without wrinkle" it might lead all Christians to reunion. He died on June 3, 1962, after the assembly's first session.

Pope Paul VI, who celebrates his 68th birthday after the opening of the council this month, pledged to carry on John's work.

"The pre-eminent part of our pontificate will be the continuance of the Ecumenical Council," he told the cardinals who elected him.

The pontiff, who called himself "an apostle on the move" —he became the first Pope to fly and leave Italy when he went to the Holy Land and then India between sessions — kept his word. Guiding the next two sessions over often rocky paths, he tried to steer a middle course in disputes that flared-up between conservative and liberal prelates.

The result was major legislation for church life. At the close of the second session in 1963, the Pope promulgated the constitution on the liturgy which already has substituted modern languages for Latin in the Mass and will be the basis for further changes in the Mass and Sacraments. A second decree on communications called for modern use by the church of information media.

The pontiff's relations with the assembly have not always been happy. There was deep resentment last year when he proclaimed the Virgin Mary "mother of the church" against the will of the majority, concurred in a decision engineered by conservatives to block a vote on religious liberty, and ordered last minute changes in a decree on Christian unity.

Many liberal prelates have been disturbed that the Pope has not carried through the reform of the Roman Curia that he announced on Sept. 21, 1963. They also note he has made no significant move, as he had said, to strip away some of the Vatican pomp or to create an "episcopal senate." These prelates are mystified as to "where the Pope really stands."

Recent grave appeals for caution made by the pontiff on four occasions while recuperating from a "case of overwork" at his summer villa in Castel Gandolfo have not reassured these liberals.

These speeches carried a motif of wariness towards the modern world's challenges and may foreshadow the line of the pontiff's address to the council on the opening day.

Roman Catholics To Hold Classes

Latest in a series of Roman Catholic information classes will begin Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the social hall of St. Raphael's, 1104 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael.

The classes are designed for those who wish to investigate the church with the idea of joining it, who desire more information about Roman Catholicism, or who already belong but seek to learn more of the church's doctrine at an adult level.

Classes for this session will be held each Wednesday night for the next four months. Father James D. Halligan is instructor.

Study, Prayer Week Set For Unity Church

Members of the Unity Christ Church of Marin, San Anselmo, will join with other Unity students throughout the world in a week of special observance Monday through Sept. 19.

Their week of study and prayer is called Lesson In Truth Week after a book by that name by Dr. Emilie Cady. Sermon topics for September are based on certain chapters in the book.

Early Service

First Baptist Church, Sausalito, will inaugurate an early worship service at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow, replacing the 11 a.m. service. The church at 131 Filbert Street believes it will be the only Protestant church offering a service at that hour. Pastor is Kenneth Daugherty.

St. Raphael's Parish Picnic On Tomorrow

Annual parish picnic of St. Raphael's Roman Catholic Church will be held tomorrow at St. Peter Chanel Seminary grounds, Belle and Grand Avenues, San Rafael.

The swimming pool will be open at 11 a.m. and refreshments will go on sale at noon. Picnickers may bring their own lunches or purchase food at the site.

There will be races, games, prizes, pony rides, and an hour and a half of staged entertainment.

Co-chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. James Mahoney and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rupiper. Guido Scotto is barbecue chef.

Lutheran Drive Sends Clothing Overseas

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lutheran World Relief's overseas shipments during April included 25 cases of new clothing for refugee children in the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan — enough to provide dresses for 3,300 girls and shirts and shorts for an equal number of boys.

The clothing was obtained through the "Dorcas Project" which LWR launched seven years ago to enlist women's church groups to sew clothing for needy youngsters in the Holy Land.

New Lutheran Church Directory Published

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Lutheran Council has published a new edition of the Lutheran Church Directory for the United States and Canada. The 232-page volume lists about 18,500 congregations affiliated with this country's Lutheran church bodies.

Listed are congregations in all 50 states, nine provinces in Canada and its Yukon Territory, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Chile Storm Survivors Get Relief Airlifts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Church World Service, Protestant overseas relief agency, has launched mercy airlifts of antibiotics, blankets and warm clothing for survivors of Chile's violent winter storms.

Ten thousand tetracycline capsules, 3,600 doses of anti-measles vaccine, 2,000 blankets and 10,000 pounds of clothing are being flown from John F. Kennedy and Philadelphia International airports by Eastern Northeast and National airlines to Miami. LAN-Chile Airlines is donating space from Miami to Santiago.

Study Of 'Peanuts' Now In 10th Printing

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Robert L. Short's serious study of the theological significance of the comic strip "Peanuts," created by Charles Schulz, is now in its 10th printing and still climbing on all major book lists.

Nearly 300,000 copies of the book have been sold to date. Foreign editions already are planned for England, Sweden and Germany, with others to follow.

Church To Get Old Sausalito Ferry Slip Bell

Work will begin soon on construction of a bell gate for St. Aden's Episcopal Church in Bolinas.

Housed in the gate will be an old ferry bell which for many years rang on a Sausalito ferry slip and, later, rang from the steeple of Sausalito's Episcopal Christ Church.

When a few choir members at the church decided the bell was not to their musical taste, the church ordered a new bell cast from Holland and the old bell was sold to William A. Pomeroy.

It rested in Pomeroy's back yard in Sausalito for a while and then he, who also has a residence in Bolinas, presented it to St. Aden's.

Memorial funds for the bell gate structure, to be built near the church property line on Brighton Avenue, were contributed by friends of the late John B. Lowe. Lowe, former Sausalito mayor, used to ring the bell as a choir boy at Christ Church. On retirement he moved to Bolinas where he lived about 10 years. He died last year.

The gate was designed by architect Jack Hermann of Kentfield and will be built by Pepper and Son Inc., Bolinas, reported G. N. Brockhurst, clerk-treasurer of the St. Aden's Bishop's Committee.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Sept. 11, the 254th day of 1965 with 111 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars, and Saturn.

American short story writer O. Henry (William S. Porter) was born on this day in 1862.

On this day in history:

In 1777, Gen. George Washington's troops were badly defeated by the British at the Battle of Brandywine.

In 1841, all members of President John Tyler's cabinet resigned, except Secretary of State Daniel Webster, in protest over the veto of the banking bill.

In 1940, Buckingham Palace in London was damaged by German planes.

In 1945, former Japanese Premier Tojo tried to commit suicide to escape prosecution as a war criminal.

A Thought For The Day: American novelist Washington Irving said: "A woman's whole life is a history of affections."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Take Precautions Against Bad Break When Playing

There is no need to feel that you are the innocent victim of outrageous fortune if one opponent turns up with all of the missing trumps.

You should expect this kind of break about one time out of 10, and you should make provision for it when you can.

1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	All Pass

Opening lead — ◇ K

South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds and led a low trump. West played the five, and dummy won with the jack.

LOW CLUB

When East discarded a low club South moaned like a wounded orangoutan. You can take the word of a man who has grown gray at the bridge table that this is a very disturbing sound.

South eventually lost two trumps, a heart and a diamond. Down one.

If this sort of thing happens to one of your friends, tell him he is lucky.

NO ESCAPE

After he has finished thanking you for this statement, you can tell him why. There would be no escape if East held all four trumps, but the hand should be made with the four trumps in the West hand.

After taking the ace of diamonds, South should lead the king of spades.

Any play works if the trumps break normally, but the lead of the king guards against four trumps in the West hand.

TAKES ACE

West takes the ace of spades, cashes one high diamond and leads a club. South wins and leads a spade through West, having already discovered the bad break.

West puts up the nine of spades, and dummy wins with the jack. South gets to his hand with a club to lead another spade, and now West's 10-5 are trapped by dummy's Q-8 of trumps.

There are several ways to play the rest of the hand, but almost any play will work. The main problem is to avoid the loss of two trump tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ A 10 9 5
♥ 8 5
♦ K Q J 8
♣ 7 5 2

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two diamonds.

You plan to raise spades next, showing a hand too good for a raise to two spades, but not good enough for a jump to three spades.

MILTENBERG - ON - MAIN, West Germany (AP)—The local photography club, hard put to find suitable accommodations for the club darkroom, learned that the local prison is rarely if ever full of prisoners.

So the club dickered with city authorities and leased two of the prison cells for darkroom use.

A GRAND GIANT WIN

I'm No Home Run Hitter Claims Mac The Hitter

Willie McCovey, who says he's just trying to meet the ball, is the reason the San Francisco Giants started this day atop the National League.

On 34 occasions this year when McCovey just met the ball it just about exploded. These 34 make him the second leading home run hitter, behind teammate Willie Mays' 46.

As a pinch-hitter last night at Candlestick Park McCovey blasted a grand slam homer in the sixth inning that gave the Giants the runs they needed to beat the Chicago Cubs 5-2, for their seventh straight victory.

"I don't consider myself a home run hitter," maintained McCovey, who shared the National League leadership in 1963 with 44 homers.

"I still say I just try to meet the ball," McCovey continued. "If I tried to hit homers, I'd never hit one."

Aching feet dropped McCovey's production last season to 18 homers and his batting average to .220. He's 60 points above that average now.

"The difference between last year and this year is that I'm healthier," McCovey said. "I wear the same shoes as you do, but with a special built-up insole. My feet were hurting as bad as last year on the last road trip, but I think it was just because of harder infields."

McCovey's grand slam was only his second hit off Chicago reliever Ted Abernathy, the underhanded right-hander.

"That Abernathy has been tough on me and on us and on everyone this year," said McCovey. "I hit him once—for a single."

Starter and loser Dick Ellsworth, a southpaw, had loaded the bases with one out on two walks and a single. Abernathy came in and gave up a topped infield single to Jim Hart that tied the game 1-1.

Up came McCovey then and lined a one-strike pitch over the right field fence.

The Cubs scored their first run on rookie Don Young's fifth-inning homer off winner Ron Herbel (10-7). It was the first major league hit for Young who came up from Dallas-Fort Worth.

The second Cubs run was singled across in the seventh by Billy Williams. That boosted Williams' season batting mark against the Giants to .329, with 14 runs-batted-in.

When he came up in the ninth with one out and men on first and second against right-hander Frank Linzy, San Francisco manager Herman Franks brought in southpaw Bill Henry.

Williams lofted Henry's first pitch toward right field. But luck was with the Giants. The normal gale toward right field had died and so did the ball—in Ken Henderson's glove.

Bill Faul, the last pitcher to beat the Giants, put his 5-3 record on the line today against Bob Shaw (15-8).

L.A. WINS BUT REDS SPUTTER

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

If there's one pitcher Sandy Koufax can't match, it's teammate Don Drysdale.

In home runs.

Drysdale followed Koufax' record-breaking fourth no-hitter with a record-tying feat of his own last night, hitting his seventh homer of the season in the Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-2 victory over Houston.

Drysdale gave the Dodgers a 2-0 lead in the third inning when he tagged a Robin Roberts pitch over the left field pavilion in Dodger Stadium, tying the National League record for most homers by a pitcher in one season.

Drysdale, who hit seven homers in 1958 and shares the record with the Dodgers' Don Newcombe, also closed in on a 20-victory season by gaining his 19th triumph. That leaves him only three victories behind Koufax. But then he's seven homers ahead.

Meanwhile, San Francisco's Willie Mays became the first player in N.L. history to score 100 runs for 12 consecutive seasons when he came home in the sixth inning of the league-leading Giant's 5-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Mays scored run No. 100 on a pinch-hit grand slam homer by Willie McCovey that snapped a 1-1 tie and protected the Giants' one-half game lead over the second-place Dodgers.

Cincinnati dropped into third place, 1½ back, after a 7-0 loss to Pittsburgh and fourth-place Milwaukee remianed 2½ behind by downing the New York Mets 3-1. Philadelphia edged St. Louis 5-4 in 12 innings.

Drysdale, who has hit 27 homers during his career, was tagged for fourth inning homers by Walt Bond and Jim Wynn that wiped out the lead he had provided. But he was available again with a key hit in the fifth when the Dodgers broke the 2-2 tie.

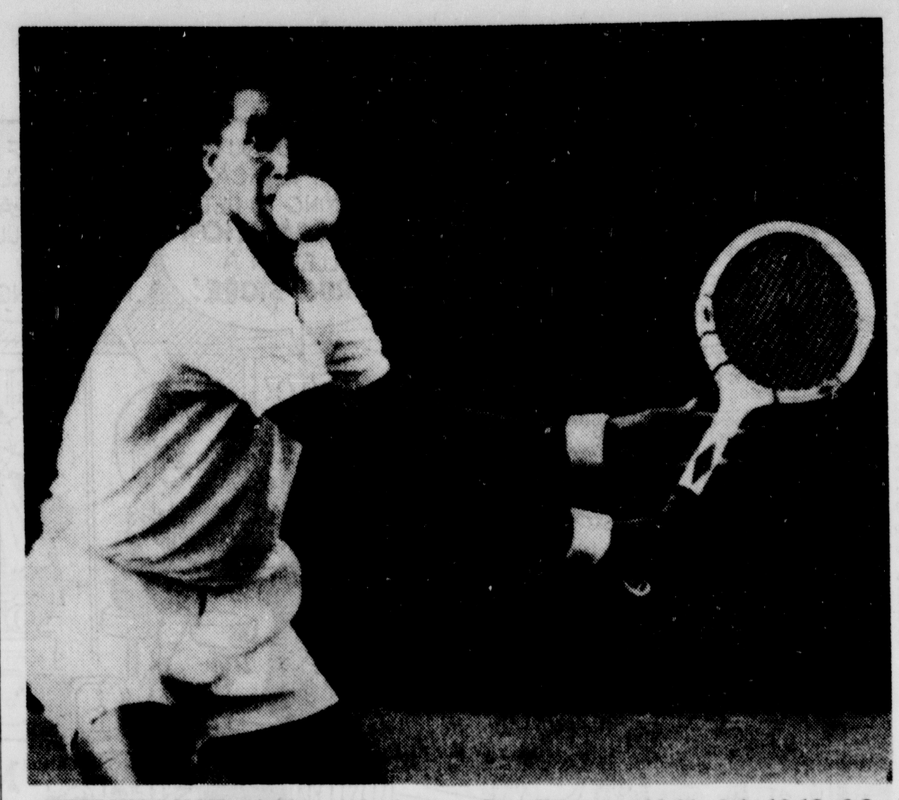

John Roseboro started the fifth inning rally with a single, raced around to third on a single by Drysdale and scored on the play when Wynn, in center field, fumbled the ball. Drysdale lasted one more inning, then gave way to Ron Perranoski, who finished up.

Bob Veale, the Pirates' ace left-hander, brought his record to 16-10 by scattering nine Cincinnati hits while Pittsburgh made the most of Joey Jay's wildness.

The Pirates rode three walks to a first inning run, then put the game out of reach in the sixth inning with a four-run uprising capped by Willie Stargell's three-run homer. That was all for Jay, 9-7.

Felipe Alou got the job done for the Braves with a two-run homer in the seventh ining that snapped a 1-1 tie and made the Mets' Jack Fisher the first 20-game loser in the majors this season.

Three Milwaukee pitchers — Wade Blasingame, Billy O'Dell and Phil Niekro — held the Mets to one hit. That was Jim Hickman's two-out homer off Blasingame in the fourth inning.

Wosser's Big, Big Splash

San Francisco Yacht Club's Jake Wosser made a big splash—literally and figuratively—yesterday in the world's championship regatta of the International One Design sailing class.

The pride of the Belvedere club and a veteran of many a tiller thriller in Bay warfare emerged as undisputed champ in the week long regatta with 19¾ points in the inverted scoring system—a healthy 7¼ digits ahead of runnerup, Ingar Dobloug of Norway who totalled 27.

Wosser's main problem yesterday was to keep from fouling out, as he entered the final day's competition with such a strong lead that nothing short of a foul out or a fate worse than the Titanic's could prevent him from picking up all the marbles. His tiller work was so spotless that club members dubbed him "Mr. Clean" and even went so far as rinsing off him and his crew with a jubilant dunking in the bay when they returned to their Belvedere berth. It was juite a splash and even Jake's young daughter Susan was heaved into the drink.

Wosser finished sixth in yesterday's final race in the Iorana, owned by Dr. Paul DeSilva, good enough to preserve the lead he had established in previous outings.

The Wosser crew included his daughter Susan, Roy Ashley, Ron Anderson and Howard McGill. Ashley was the spinnaker man. McGill subbed for Jim Davies in the final race.

The series was sailed in the Berkeley Shoals, away from winds and tricky tides off the headlands.

Final standings: Wosser, 19¾; Dobloug, 27; Soren Wiese, Norway, 33¾; Orison McPherson, Long Island Sound, 36½; Larry Grinell, San Francisco, 45; William John, Long Island Sound, 46¼; Kalle Nergaard, Norway, 53¾; David Rockefeller Jr., Maine, 54¾; Nat Butterfield, Bermuda, 57; Don MacIntosh, Marblehead, Mass., 58; Bernt Aaby, Norway, 59; Philip Lord, Marblehead, Mass., 65; Peter Richold, Bermuda, 68.

FRED HETZEL SIGNS

How Celtic Coach Helped Warriors Land No. 1 Star

San Francisco's Warriors came up with a surprise ally in their signing of All America Fred Hetzel—none other than Coach Red Auerbach of the National Basketball Association champion Boston Celtics.

After being drafted as a top choice by the Warriors after his 1964-65 senior year at Davidson, Hetzel debated the San Francisco offer and one from an Italian team in Milan.

"Coach Auerbach and I both live in Washington, D. C., and I'd attended his basketball camp after my senior year in high school," Hetzel explained. "So I talked things over with him.

"He pointed out the advantages of staying in the United States to play."

The Warriors announced yesterday that Hetzel had signed with them, but would not divulge terms of the contract. It is, however, believed to be for one year without a no-cut clause.

President Franklin Mieuli explained, "Coach Alex Hannum is categorically against no-cut contracts and I concur wholeheartedly."

Hannum says he plans to work Hetzel in as a forward although his collegiate experience all was as a center.

Hetzel and Rick Barry of Miami, each an All American, were picked on the first round draft by the Warriors who finished last in the NBA's Western Division last year. Barry signed earlier.

In college, Hetzel majored in social science with minors in business and Spanish. He said the opportunity in Milan would have permitted him to continue his studies at the university there.

In college, Hetzel averaged 26 points per game through three seasons, hitting for a total of 2,052.

The Warriors open training Monday at San Jose.

No Bubbly Stuff If Pirates Win

If the Pittsburgh Pirates win the 1965 National League pennant—and shop for a price if you think—don't bother to send champagne for the victory party. There won't be any.

And, if the Pittsburgh Pirates don't win the 1965 National League pennant, it will be because they won the 1960 N.L. pennant—and had a victory party.

It was on the bus back from the pennant-clinching win in Milwaukee. A few of the boys were whooping it up; the champagne was flowing, laced with beer. Elroy Face took his teeth out and put his hat on sideways, a quartet got going, off-key, in the back of the bus and everybody was happy.

Or, almost everybody. In a front seat, the team's most valuable member, the pitcher who was to win the Cy Young Award and beat the Yankees twice in the upcoming World Series, looked more like a guy who had just heard Paris fell.

WHEN ANYBODY sits this sombre in the midst of a gay party, you all know what the next scene is: some guy with a lampshade on his head and wearing a grass skirt, with his glasses fogged up, comes along and shouts, "Shay! You don't look like you're havin' fun!" And he empties a bottle of champagne over your new suit, or pushes you in the pool or dumps a giggling girl in your lap just as your wife enters the room.

They didn't exactly do this to Vernon Sanders Law that September afternoon in 1960. But a utility player whose contribution to the victory that season could not be found without a microscope, came playfully up to Law and grabbed him by the foot. He gave it a yank—the most expensive leg pull in history. He not only sprained Law's ankle, he fractured Pittsburgh's pennant chances for four years.

VERNON LAW pitched in the World Series, favoring an ankle that made him wince on every follow-through. What happened next is what always happens next when a pitcher favors an injured leg—the unnatural motion tore a rotator muscle in his shoulder. He beat the Yanks twice but each pitch shortened his career. The next spring he showed up in camp with an arm so stiff and sore, it looked as if it were tacked on his side. The 20-game winner in 1960 became a 3-game winner in 1961. He Pitched only 59 innings, but he had to clench his teeth to keep from screaming during most of them.

Vern Law occupies the same unique position on the Pittsburgh Pirates that Albie Pearson does on the Angels, Don Demeter on the Tigers, Bobby Richardson on the Yankees and a handful of other players around the leagues. He is a tither, a teetotaler. The Pirates call him "Deacon," because ballplayers call anybody "Deacon" who goes to church on Sundays and to bed before midnight.

ACTUALLY, VERN Law is an ordained Elder in the Mormon Church. The Pirates respect him for his beliefs even though they know if he wandered into Frankie's Band-Box saloon in Pittsburgh, it would be to use the phone or get out of an earthquake. The profanity is cut to a minimum in his corner of the locker room where the scholarly Bob Veale and the abstemious Del Crandall also suit up. It is a section of the dressing room one of the players refers to affectionately as "The Monastery" and where he has recommended stained glass windows for their shower.

IF THE Pirates win this year, (and if they do, the biggest part of the reason wil be the 16 games Law won this year between arm twinges) the victory party won't be bobbing for apples at the YMCA, or fruit punch and sarsparilla, but you can bet me that the Pirates' general manager, Joe Brown, will make sure anything his athletes do is not against the Law.

Bob St. Clair Hangs 'Em Up

Bob St. Clair and the San Francisco 49ers have made it official: The 6-foot-9 veteran offensive tacke of 12 National Football League seasons has called it quits.

The 265-pound St. Clair tore the Achilles tendon in his left leg while warming up for the 1964 season opener and remained out for the season after infection following surgery.

The 49ers and St. Clair announced yesterday he would scout collegiate talent on the Pacific Coast. He doesn't need the work. The 34-year-old St. Clair owns a chain of liquor stores and once was the mayor of adjoining Daly City.

Art Ashe Toast Of Net World

By WILL GRIMSLEY

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—When Arthur Ashe Jr. started playing tennis at the age of nine, he was a scrawny, anemic, knock-kneed kid swinging a racket that looked as big as he was.

Today this same Ashe, son of a Richmond cop, is the biggest name in the game, winner over the world's No. 1 player, Roy Emerson of Australia, in the quarter-finals of the National Championships.

The 22-year-old UCLA senior gets another major test today when he faces Manuel Santana of Spain, the international veteran who recently almost single-handedly wrecked U.S. Davis Cup hopes.

If he can get by Santana and then beat the winner of the match between Rafael Osuna of Mexico and Cliff Drysdale of South Africa — a big order but not unlikely — he will become the first U.S. player in 10 years to win the American championship. Tony Trobert was the last in 1955.

He also will become the first Negro champion.

"I thought I might beat Emerson," Ashe said after his sensational upset victory. "About Santana — I'm not saying."

Santana beat Antonio Palafox of Mexico 6-3, 9-7, 6-1. Osuna and Drysdale advanced yesterday.

With Chuck McKinley in semi-retirement and Dennis Ralston considering curtailment of his schedule, Ashe has emerged as the new hope of the long-suffering American tennis legions.

In beating Emerson, he displayed a brilliant all-round game, characterized by a rocket service, excellent ground strokes and ability to rise to the occasion.

Ashe grew up on the streets of Richmond and attracted the attention of Dr. Walter Johnson, the Lynchburg physician who has long been a benefactor of promising players of his race. Johnson aided Althea Gibson, the former U.S. and Wimbledon champion.

"Arthur was an awful sight when he showed up at our place," the 66-year-old Dr. Johnson said. "He looked half-starved and he could hardly swing a racket. But he was a good boy and he kept his eye on the ball."

Arthur is still keeping his eye on the ball.

The first Negro member of the U.S. Davis Cup team, he beat both Osuna and Palafox of Mexico in the Davis Cup interzone finals at Dallas. He was held out of the matches in Spain and thus failed to get a shot at Santana, his foe today.

Ashe, with a year to go at UCLA, is anxious to play big time tennis and, if possible, develop into the world's best.

"The Army may have other ideas," he said. "I am 1-d. When I finish school, I'm ready for service. But I'll get to play in Australia this winter and that should put me in shape for a good season in 1966".

Marin's Golf Tournament Of Stars May Draw 12,000

"We're hoping for at least 12,000 spectators this year because of the outstanding stars who are committed to compete," said Maurie Luxford about the upcoming Marin Invitational Tournament of Stars.

Luxford again is the honorary chairman of the golf tourney that will include 30 movie and television celebrities, 30 top-ranking amateur golfers, and 60 Bay Area golfers.

Topping the list of stars who plan to be on hand Sept. 19 at the Peacock Gap Country Club course are Bob Hope and Bing Crosby. And when these two get together, it's a show in itself.

Luxford, the only non-professional to achieve golf's "Hall of Fame," is widely known for his direction of the annual Bing Crosby tournament at Pebble Beach. Luxford said that Crosby, a gallery attraction at last year's Marin Invitational who was unable to play because of a shoulder ailment, may be able to play this time around since his shoulder has improved in recent weeks.

The star-studded list of invitees to the tournament includes such other entertainment personalities as James Garner, Robert Sterling, Jim "Mr. Magoo" Backus, George Goebel, Jose Ferrer, Tenessee Ernie Ford, Gordon MacRae, John Raitt, Jimmy Rogers, Fred McMurray and Kirk Douglas.

Top amateurs participating in the tourney will be E. Harvie Ward Jr., Bob Roos, J. E. French Jr., Jim Lange, Joe DiMaggio and Lefty O'Doul.

Proceeds of the entire show, including a $20 per plate dinner Sept. 18 on the eve of the tourney, will go to the Marin Youth Fund. The celebrity dinner will be held at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael. An awards dinner will be held at Peacock Gap Country Club following the tourney.

Tying for low gross honors last year were Rev. Len Scannell, post chaplain at Hamilton Air Force Base; and top amateurs Bob Roos and Ron Cerrudo, each touring the Peacock Gap course in one-under-par 70.

John Agar, with a 73, and Jim Garner, 74, topped the celebrity division in which Hollywood stunt man, Bob Morgan, who had lost a leg during filming of "How the West Was Won," was the low net winner with 74-8—66. Dante Tognoli won low net in the amateur flight with 75-11—64.

A gallery of 3,500 turned out for the first tourney of stars. William H. McDevitt, San Rafael builder who is chairman of the Invitational's committee, said that since the tourney is now established, net profits to the charities should be "very substantial this year."

Gallery tickets at $2 are now on sale at pro shops and sports stores throughout the Bay Area. Initial mail reservations may be made by sending checks or money orders to Committee Headquarters at 511 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael.

Drake Has Momentum, Size And That Man Lazzarini

(Fourth in a series on Marin Athletic League football prospects.)

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Drake High School's football team had many big features last year that led to a championship and two of them were size and Dean Lazzarini. This year the Pirates have those same two ingredients back.

But two big threats that helped make the Pirates go are not returning. Fullback Joe DeMasi, who kept the middle of opposing lines honest, and the passing combination of Al Simontacchi to Larry Stein is off the books because of graduations. Without them, more eyes of defensive players will be on Lazzarini, the speedy scatback.

Drake is in the midst of a winning era in Marin County prep football and has momentum to continue. The Pirates were co-champs with San Rafael in 1963 and sole champs of the Marin Athletic League last year.

Six first stringers from the '64 team are returning and 10 other players from that team are back, giving Drake good experience in some key spots.

Defensive end Doug Manuel (6-1, 190), flanker John Boothby (5-10, 170), guard Ed Farina (5-11, 198), defensive guard Bill Hickerson (6-0, 235) and tackle Rich Cohen (5-10, 198) are returning first stringers for Drake. And of course there's Lazzarini.

Lazz was a sensation in the league the past two seasons. Now a senior, he is faster and bigger. He picked up 10 pounds since last grid season and now weighs in at 175 pounds. He was fourth fastest in the 100-yard dash last year at the California State Track and Field meet in Bakersfield, running the century in 9.8. And he has already said his first love in sports is football, not track.

Coach Bob Franceschini sounds cautiously optimistic on his team's fortunes. "We have some big boys coming back and some juniors that look very good," said Bob.

Bill Ingram, back up man for Simontacchi last year, will be the starting quarterback for the Pirates. He's 6 feet and 180 pounds. Going for the open fullback position are Brad Kritsky, a 175-pound senior who was in DeMasi's shadow last year, and 208-pound Tony Iacopi, a junior up from the junior varsity.

But the key to Drake's running game of course will be Lazzarini. "He has a faster take off and has more confidence than he did last year," says Franceschini. "And he's bigger," he adds.

A pair of big tackles, and both of them juniors, have impressed Franceschini and assistant coach Carl "Red" Brown because "they are big, strong and fast," says Fran. One is Jerry Sprout, 6-3 and 215 pounds and the other is Carl Gonser, 6-2 and 198. Sprout is a defensive standout and Gonser will probably be used offensively.

Top ends for Drake are a pair of sophomores who are already known around the campus because of their all-around athletic ability. Don Alvarado is 5-11 and 165 pounds and was a key man on the school's Class B basketball team and was a catcher on the varsity baseball team. Chet Carlisle, son of the superintendent of the Tamalpais Unified High School District, is the other end with first string potential. The six-foot, 165-pound athlete also stars in basketball and swimming at Drake.

"Our linebackers this year are bigger than we usually have," said Franceschini. Steve Davis is 5-10½ and 175 pounds and Lars Gare is 5-10 and 170 pounds. They're both juniors and hard-working kids, says the head coach.

Mike Russell, at 5-11 and 185, is a top-notch defensive safety, says Franceschini. He's the No. 2 quarterback for Drake, but his big contribution to the team will be his defensive play, Bob said.

"It should be a balanced league, with a lot of close games," said Franceschini. "Novato will be strong, Terra Linda is in the running, and San Rafael may be a sleeper."

Drake will be opening the season with a nine-game winning streak going since the Pirates were undefeated last year, taking the three practice games and six league encounters. Drake has won 17 out of its last 18 football games, the one loss in that record coming in the final game of its 1963 season when San Rafael whipped the Pirates 24-0 to tie for the championship.

"But I haven't forgotten those first 18 I lost at Drake," said Franceschini, who had the misfortune to lose his first 18 games, an awful greeting to a new coach. That covered the 1958 and '59 seasons.

Drake will be using a multiple offense this season, using split ends quite a bit to exploit the passing game. Drake will be trying to spread out the defense so Lazzarini can get some running room. Once this speedster gets in the open, he's gone!

"There is no doubt all the teams want to knock off Drake," said the Pirates' head coach, "and it puts a lot of pressure on the kids. But these guys would like to see the winning string go on."

And with the manpower Drake has, the Pirates might just keep that victory string going.

COLLEGE OF MARIN GRID

Bright Outlook For Tars

By MAURICE WEINGER

Coaching a junior college football team demands flexibility in thinking and planning as well as an ability to cope with drastic changes in personnel from one season to another.

Take the case of Coach Dick Read at College of Marin. In 1963 he welcomed back 18 lettermen and tied for the league title with an over-all 7-2 record. Last year, Read could only count six returning veterans and his team won only two of nine tilts.

This year's outlook is not only brighter with 11 veterans coming back but a number of experienced players who played their high school ball in Marin have turned out at the Kentfield campus and the Tars are pointing to unseat perennial champion Santa Rosa in the Golden Valley Conference.

Read's optimism is not only based on the fact that the school has a new million-dollar gym but "we're now offering more for our youngsters to come to our school. Before, many students came with a negative approach, but it's now getting harder to get into a four-year college right away and a lot of students feel they can get a fine education here and then progress onward."

With an increase in the newcomers, Read has been able to relieve some of last year's players from the burden of playing both offense and defense. Two players in particular, Steve Minutoli and Dave Cerricola, will play strictly defense. Minutoli will be at one of the linebacker spots while Cerricola will operate at defensive halfback.

The offensive backfield will probably operate with the veteran signal caller Lis Wisner at quarterback, Brian Laurie at fullback, Dave Auerbach and Tim Garvin at the halfback spots.

"Auerbach is a real pro," exclaimed Read in praising the former Redwood back who played last year at the University of New Mexico. Laurie is a veteran but another 200-pounder, Ray Miller, is pressing him hard and freshman Joe DeMasi, from Drake, the heaviest at 225 pounds, may outdo both Laurie and Miller if he can get over a back ailment.

Read got a nice surprise when two former Tamalpais graduates, Norm Kreuter and Pete Dornbach, showed up for practice. Kreuter has been in the service since 1961 and is just getting into football shape, but Read expects to start him at the linebacker spot next to Minutoli. Dornbach, now a big 240-pounder, will team with Mike Congdon, 220 pounds, at defensive tackle.

The offense Read intends to employ is the I formation along with a pro type attack. This will enable such receivers as Bill Hall, Bill Kilcoyne, Bill Collins and Ray Gonzales to be on the receiving end of many passes. Hall is only 5-9, but has been playing equally with the 6-1 Kilcoyne while the other pair have been sharing the opposite end spot.

A position where the veteran and the newcomer are teaming up is the offensive tackle spot. Veteran Chris Barnett, a 190-pounder, has nailed down one side while Brian Palmer, 185, has speed and seems sure of starting.

Read also welcomed back veteran center Bob Hermsmeyer who played in 1963, but sat out last year. Hermsmeyer, a former Drake player, is being backed up by Dave Horowitz.

The school has added one new coach in Pete Limm, who left his head coaching job at Terra Linda to assist Read. Limm is in charge of the defense. Other assistants are Ed Grimm and Jim McGowan.

The schedule is: Friday, Sept. 17, Menlo College at Kentfield, 8 p.m.; Sat., Oct. 2, at Vallejo College, 8 p.m.; Friday, Oct. 8, at American River in Sacramento, 8 p.m.; Sat., Oct. 16, West Valley at Kentfield, 8 p.m.; Friday, Oct. 22, Sierra College, Kentfield, 8 p.m.; Sat., Oct. 30, at Yuba College, 8 p.m., Friday, Nov. 5, at Napa College, 8 p.m.; Friday, Nov. 12, Shasta College, Kentfield, 8 p.m.; Friday, Nov. 19, Santa Rosa at Kentfield, 8 p.m.

49ERS GO FISHING FOR BASS IN FINAL TUNEUP TOMORROW

S. F. Vs. Rams At Coliseum; Game On TV

LOS ANGELES (AP)— The San Francisco 49ers and the Los Angeles Rams wind up the pre-season National Football League schedule tomorrow in Memorial Coliseum, with Dick Bass slated to start the game for the first time since last November.

Bass, a member of the exclusive 1,000-yard club in 1962 but hampered by injuries the past two seasons, got into the game against Philadelphia last week.

He showed traces of the old Bass but admittedly he needs game action to sharpen his timing.

The 49ers will start John Brodie, their regular, at quarterback, and the Rams again will have Bill Munson at the controls.

49ERS ON TV
Tomorrow's 49er-Ram game will be televised by KTVU, Channel 2, starting at 1 p.m.

Brodie has been sharing preseason chores with George Mira. Brodie went in for the tie with St. Louis and victory over Dallas and Mira played in the losing games with Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

Brodie's top receivers are well known to the Rams. They include Monte Stickles and Bernie Casey, as well as Dave Parks.

Munson's main targets will be rookie Jack Snow, veteran Tommy McDonald and Marlin McKeever.

Los Angeles' formidable front four — Lamar Lundy, Merlin Olsen, Roosevelt Grier and David Jones — will be minus Lundy. The veteran underwent minor surgery today for a kidney ailment.

Lundy may miss the league opener at Detroit next week.

The Rams are 2-2 for the summer, winning over Dallas and Philadelphia and losing to Cleveland and Chicago.

The 49ers present a new face here in Ken Willard, 6-2, 230-pound fullback from North Carolina. Willard is the club's leading rusher with 120 yards in 24 carries for a 5-yard average.

POP WARNER GRIDDERS KICK OFF

These three members of the San Rafael Junior Bulldogs get in some last minute practice before the start of tonight's 12th annual Pop Warner Football Festival in College of Marin Stadium, Kentfield. From left are Dan Coleman, Lowell Widmer and Dan Jordan. There will be three games in the program that starts at 5 p.m. The schedule is Redwood vs. Novato; San Rafael vs. Drake, and Terra Linda vs. Tamalpais in that order. Admission for tonight's games is 50 cents, and tickets can be purchased at the gates.

Builders In Final Bid For Pennant

Closing out their regular schedule in the Bay Area Invitational Semi-Pro Baseball League, the Billings-Hutchison Builders take on the Pacifica Lions tonight at 8:45 on the Albert Field diamond in San Rafael.

The Builders must win to keep their chance for a first place tie alive. The Santa Rosa Elks end their season against Hatzell Radio and if Santa Rosa loses and B-H wins, the two teams tie for the title.

Only other team still alive in the pennant race is Mill Valley, who must beat Husteads tomorrow and Hatzell Radio the following week. Tomorrow's Mill Valley game starts at 1:30 p.m. at Project 17 field.

First time Billings-Hutchison and Pacifica met, the Lions won 5-2, their first win of the season, and started the Builders into a three-game skid. Either right-hander Dick Descalso or southpaw Bob DeRosa will pitch tomorrow for the Builders.

AT OAKLAND

Raiders Vs. Chiefs In The AFL Opener

OAKLAND (AP) — Quarterback Len Dawson of Kansas City missed the Chiefs' pre-season battle with Oakland when the Raiders won, but he'll be at the helm when the clubs open their American Football League regular season tomorrow.

Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. with a crowd of near 20,000 expected at the 24,000-seat stadium at Frank Youell Field.

Dawson was out with injuries and Pete Beathard directed the Chiefs when they fell to Oakland 23-6 here in their Aug. 22 exhibition.

This time the Raiders will suffer more from injuries with veteran middle linebacker Arch Matsos recuperating from a head injury suffered last week.

Each club finished its pre-season slate with 3-2 record and either might go on to unseat San Diego as the AFL Western champion.

Oakland opens with veteran Tom Flores at quarterback. Halfback Clem Daniels, fullback Roger Hagberg and flanker Bo Roberson round out the backfield.

Four rookies will start for the Raiders—Bob Svihus and Harry Schuh at the tackles on offense, cornerback Kent McCloughan and linebacker Gus Otto on defense.

Marin Deer Hunters Lag Behind '64 Pace

Marin County deer hunters are running far behind the pace they set last year, the Department of Fish and Game reported yesterday.

Through the first four weeks of the season (27 days), only 282 deer had been bagged by hunters in Marin as compared to 332 reported for the corresponding period of 1964.

Black Mustang Auto Missing

A 1965 black Mustang car with white sidewalls on the rear wheels was stolen in San Rafael early Thursday.

Owner Charlotte Mitchell Maydole of 171 Novato Street said her car had been parked and locked near her home about midnight Wednesday. Thursday morning, she found the car missing.

A visitor from San Bruno complained Thursday night that $200 worth of hubcaps were stolen from his 1958 sedan, which had been parked in the alley beside Marin Auction Gallery, 605 Irwin Street, San Rafael.

'Can't Be Bad,' Says Pipe Smoker At 100

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) —Albert Fournier, 100, has been smoking cigarettes or a pipe since he was four years old.

"Can't be bad for me," he says. "I'm still here."

Case Of Missing Bitten Child Solved

The case of the missing bitten child has been cleared up, according to Dan Pelz of the Marin County Health Department.

The search for the girl began after someone left a small female black and brown dachshund in a box outside the Humane Society Sunday.

With the dog was a litter of pups she had killed and a note saying the dog had bitten a child on the face and was vicious.

The unidentified dog was placed under quarantine and Pelz sought information about a child who had been bitten on the face.

A story appeared in the Independent-Journal Thursday and Pelz got a telephone call from the owner of the dog who said the dog bit his child and he took the dog to the Humane Society.

The dog had been vaccinated in February and was not rabid, Pelz said.

UFT president Albert Shanker declined to give details of the contract offer.

Everyone's Talking About THE MEADOWS at TERRA LINDA

WHY? . . . Because this award-winning apartment community has everything you are looking for: Furnished or unfurnished apartments and townhouses . . . a relaxed setting of incomparable beauty situated on 25 acres . . . family buildings separated from adult buildings . . . all schools just steps away . . . townhouse units have over 1500 sq. ft. with their own private outdoor patios.

THE OAK VIEW CLUB — your own Private Club, is just a short walk from your beautiful Apartment or Townhouse. There is a putting green, lockers, men's and women's lounges, showers and sauna baths . . . 2 wind-free championship tennis courts acclaimed as the best in Marin County . . . two large heated swimming pools and a wading pool . . . shuffleboard, ping-pong and a large, comfortable sunning area . . . all this amidst rolling hills, studded with ancient oaks and beautifully landscaped.

THE CLUB HOUSE itself is luxuriously furnished . . . the cocktail lounge is carpeted and has a huge fireplace . . . intimate social-dining room . . . spacious facilities for private receptions, parties, bridge, teen-age dances and indoor movies.

APARTMENTS consist of one, two and three bedrooms.

TOWNHOUSES consist of two and three bedrooms, 1½ baths.

CHOICES of parquet flooring or area carpeting. All are beautifully draped. All have louvered doors within. Kitchens are completely electric. All refrigerators are self-defrosting and have separate freezer tops. THESE UNITS ARE THE ONLY ONES IN MARIN COUNTY WITH CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING, THERMOSTATICALLY CONTROLLED BY YOU.

Rents start at $160 per month and afford family membership in the Oakview Club.

MODEL apartments, townhouses and the Oakview Club are open for YOUR inspection. We invite you to compare The Meadows with ANY other apartment development in Marin County before renting.

DIRECTIONS: Past San Rafael take Terra Linda turnoff, continue to the end of Freitas Parkway, and then you enter THE MEADOWS.

OPEN every day, 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Mt. Everest Show Is Called Failure

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The stirring story of the successful American ascent of Mt. Everest, the world's highest mountain, was turned into a remarkably lackluster documentary on CBS-TV last night.

This is not to say that there weren't inspiring moments in the on-the-spot filming, which was turned into an hour program by the National Geographic Society and David Wolper — but there was a flatness, a failure to capture the spirit of the American expedition in the Himalayas in more than routine terms.

I think that certainly one of the main reasons for this failure — and for the flatness of the hour, "Americans on Everest" — was the near-total lack, for whatever reason, of sound film, which deprived the production of a sense of human immediacy. In the very few moments when there was sound film, the program jumped into life.

Over the long haul, this lack of human sound removed the viewer more and more from the urgent reality of the moment, and it all seemed a throwback to the old travelogue days of silent film and a narrator. In short, instead of projecting with a "this is how it is" tone — which is television's most effective living documentary approach — the program fell into the more ordinary "that's how it was" format.

To be perfectly honest, although travelogues may soon be coming on the networks in a rather prominent regular trend, this one — except for the actual splendor of the event—seemed hardly more worthy than the many travelogues one sees on local television stations.

The narration by Orson Welles was not exceptional. The editing seemed strangely disjointed at key moments, and lacked pace — though one can certainly understand the tremendous difficulties the photographers must have had. The music was not only deadly routine, but seemed almost lackadaisically inappropriate. And the combination of music and silent film only added to the gap between reality and the show.

On the plus side, the program was presented early in the evening, a fine hour for inquisitive youngsters. And the color was, of course, an added dimension. In addition, the script by author James Ramsey Ullman, a member of the expedition, came closest to salvaging the hour. And of course the event itself — in the face of killing winds, snow, ice and avalanches—was a thrilling tribute to human will.

Pike To Recognize Woman As Minister

BIG SUR (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike says he will perform a ceremony recognizing Phyllis Edwards as a minister.

Pike said in Big Sur yesterday that Mrs. Edwards will be the first Episcopal woman to use the designation, reverend. The House of Bishops this week refused Pike's attempt to ordain Mrs. Edwards as a deacon.

She is officially a deaconess in the church, the only ministerial position for women. Pike says the recognition of Mrs. Edwards as a minister moves "the church out of the 18th century."

"We now have ordained women ministers," said Pike. "It's clear that is what our deaconesses are."

If Mrs. Edwards had been ordained as a deacon she could have served communion. The bishops' action to block her elevation to that position will prevent her from serving at the special ceremony. Only men are deacons.

Her recognition as a minister will be Monday in Grace Cathedral in San Francisco. Pike, California bishop, will conduct the service.

About heresy charges unsuccessfully raised against him by 14 Arizona clergymen, Pike said:

"I'm glad to get them out of my hair."

The House of Bishops, meeting in East Glacier, Mont., refused to recognize the charges. A committee of bishops said the charges "have no standing among us."

The Arizona priests contended Pike had repudiated the Virgin Birth, denied the doctrine of the Holy Trinity, and that Pike's cathedral was not observing one of the church festivals, the Feast of the Annunciation.

Pike was in Big Sur for a two-day seminar on "A Revolution in Christianity."

Army Looking For 11,700 New Officers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is looking for 11,700 new second lieutenants, to be commissioned after 23-week training courses.

The new officers, needed to help meet the Army's increasing size, will be commissioned at more than three times the recent rate of about 3,400 a year under the officer candidate program. They will serve in infantry, artillery, armor and other arms and branches of the service.

The Army is to be increased by 235,000 officers and men to a new total of about 1,200,000 by next July 1.

Officers candidate schools at Ft. Benning, Ga., and Ft. Sill, Okla., will sharply expand their size and new schools will be established at Ft. Belvoir, Va., Ft. Knox, Ky., and Ft. Gordon, Ga.

Fisherman Injured In Cliff Fall

A 65-year-old Mill Valley gardener was injured yesterday when he fell from a 40-foot cliff while fishing near Paradise Drive, Tiburon.

William E. Shimizu of 7 Linden Lane, Mill Valley, was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital after he was discovered lying at the bottom of the sea cliff near 2020 Paradise Drive.

Mrs. Ellison F. Ebey of 2324 Paradise Drive saw Shimizu lying on the rocks at the base of the cliff at 6:20 p.m. and called the Tiburon Fire Department.

Shimizu was given emergency first aid for cuts on his head by the fire department, and was brought up the cliff to a waiting ambulance.

The victim's wife, Mrs. May Shimizu, said today that her husband had no idea how he fell. "He was fishing for striped bass. He loves to fish, but he doesn't know how he fell," she said.

Shimizu was being held for observation at Marin General with a cut scalp, cuts and bruises.

Cal-Vet Home Loans Extended

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Californians who saw military service during any of eight "cold war" crises will be eligible for Cal-Vet home and farm loans come next Friday.

That's the day a new law bringing such veterans under Cal-Vet coverage becomes effective, director of veterans affairs Joseph M. Farber said Friday.

Farber said early applications by the veterans will expedite processing. The new law will cover certain veterans of service during actions involving Viet Nam, Cuba, Quemoy and Matsu, Lebanon, Taiwan Straits, Laos, Berlin and The Congo.

Clausen Urges Flood Project Beautification

Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First California District, today urged the Army Corps of Engineers to "lend every effort" toward retaining the beauty of Arroyo Corte Madera Del Presidio Creek while providing flood control for the City of Mill Valley.

In a letter to Col. Robert H. Allan, San Francisco district engineer for the corps, Clausen said the efforts to retain aesthetic values along the creek could be made in the development of advanced engineering design for the project.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Sensitive, Germ-Surrounded Tongue Does Yeoman Service

The tongue is so sensitive that it overestimates the size of a tiny cavity or raspberry seed caught between the teeth. On the other hand, it makes accurate comparisons when the objects or cavities are more than three-eights of an inch in size. The surface contains so many delicate nerve endings that it can distinguish two needle points that are only one-sixteenth inch apart.

VAN DELLEN

The tongue is surrounded by more bacteria than any organ in the body. It has been estimated that the healthy oral cavity averages 750 million organisms in every 15 drops of saliva. These include staph, strep, coliform bacteria, lactobacilli, clostridium, molds, yeast, and certain spirochetes. Test have disclosed streptococci and pneumococci in the mouth of a healthy infant two days after birth. These microbes are harmless provided resistance is maintained. The majority are swallowed and destroyed by the gastric juice. The tongue rarely becomes infected even though constantly bathed in germs. On the other hand, many of these are potential troublemakers, especially when passed along through a human bite.

MOST OF US associate the tongue with taste, but it has many other functions. It is an important organ of speech and creates the air current used to suck liquids into the mouth. The structure also guides food between the uppers and lowers and steers it into the throat. Now and then it is forced to help chew when the teeth are lost.

It is no secret that physicians today spend less time examining the tongue. The horse-and-buggy doctor often started his examination with "Let me see your tongue" and used the organ as an index of health and a mirror of the digestive tract. There are a number of internal disorders leading to changes in the tongue's appearance, but other more reliable clues usually coexist. Most of the coating that bothers people is normal. It takes place at night when the cleansing action of saliva and chewing is quiescent.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

MULTIPLE TUMORS

Mrs. T. writes: I have fatty tumors of different sizes over various parts of my body and was told I have Von Recklinghausen's disease. Can you explain this to me?

REPLY

In Von Recklinghausen's disease, tumors stem from nerve tissue and are removed surgically. Fatty tumors (lipomas) come from fat. When many exist, the condition is known as multiple lipomatosis.

WARNING SIGNAL

M. R. G. writes: My condition was diagnosed as mucous colitis. I was put on a bland diet and want to know if something more serious will occur if I don't follow instructions.

REPLY

No, except this type of colitis is a warning signal of fatigue or being under too much tension, anxiety, or stresss. Take the hint and calm your mind and the bowel will follow suit.

MASS TESTING

R. U. writes: What are multiple screening tests?

REPLY

Testing of large segments of the population to determine the status of the lungs, heart, kidneys, blood, and other aspects of health. The screening procedures include X-rays, blood counts, electrocardiograms, and tests for glaucoma, syphilis, and diabetes.

EDEMA SUBSIDES

P. G. writes: Does the swelling that follows removal of a breast for cancer become normal or does it subside?

REPLY

It subsides.

BEST DEODORANT

A. V. writes: Can a 10-year-old use a deodorant?

REPLY

Yes, but it is seldom necessary because the apocrine glands are not developed until puberty. Frequent bathing and a little powder are the best deodorants for most 10 year olds.

SENSITIVITY

Mrs. N. writes: Is eczema contagious?

REPLY

No. The victim usually is sensitive to something inhaled, swallowed, or touched.

Training The Ear For Good Music

See Page M2

SAUSALITO VIOLINIST Wynn Westover, also a teacher of music theory and composition, explains to Sister Antoinette, O.P., chairman of the Dominican College music department, a chart that is among the visual materials he uses in his newly devised method of sight reading and ear training. Westover utilized his innovations in a summer course at the college in San Rafael.

A New Method For Music

Marin Teacher Develops Techniques Of His Own

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Wynn Westover, Sausalito violinist and teacher of music theory and composition, has developed a new method of teaching sight reading and ear training.

Based on 15 years of classroom experience and proved with Bay Area students over the past nine years, his copyrighted method was most recently demonstrated in a summer session course at Dominican College in San Rafael.

His approach has also been used in some of the San Rafael schools, in a pilot study at San Quentin, in training a children's choir at the First Congregational Church in San Rafael and at the Community Music Center in San Francisco.

THE COURSE will be given at the College of Marin this fall on Monday nights.

The workshop, says Westover, is basic to all forms of music activity—learning to sing, playing instruments, composing or conducting. It can also be used to advantage by critics or by just an average music lover who wishes to sharpen his appreciation of music and enjoyment from listening to it.

One of the most valuable uses would be encouraging the reading of music as literature for pure enjoyment, not necessarily for performance with any degree of skill. Thus one of the purposes of the course is to foster the ability to hear sounds mentally from the reading of written or printed notation.

AS PETER YATES said in his "An Amateur at the Keyboard," music will not survive in the concert hall if we do not keep it alive in our homes. This, Yates feels, is the responsibility of the amateur and the answer for the highly trained musician, who for one reason or another no longer performs publicly.

Westover explains, "My methods not only teach the mechanics of reading musical notation with its rhythm, harmony and melody, but involve ear training to the extent that a person can mentally hear as he reads."

"My students are able to listen to a piece of music and write it down," he says. "Their ears are so trained that they can sight read music without the aid of accompaniment at the piano or any other instrument. And they develop accurate intonation and the sense of relative pitch.

"THEY ACTUALLY write what they hear at the very first session of the workshop. The process of study as we know it today is characteristically one of continual preparation or getting ready to read and write music.

"What the workshop does is to require the students to read and write now. There is no getting ready.

"In Europe it is the custom to learn sight singing before starting the study of any instrument," he says. "As a result students can read music and have already developed their mental hearing before studying the technique of their instruments. This frees them to concentrate on that technique.

"INDEED, WHAT they learn as ear training makes it possible for them to master singing or any instrument. It is only then the mechanical techniques which are new."

"This is a problem in America," Westover maintains. "Music lessons in this country try to accomplish too many things at once. The result is that many play mechanically, lack sight reading ability and never develop their ears.

"At present my students show a wide variety of background. Among them are professional musicians, San Francisco Opera singers, band and orchestra players, teachers, amateur per-

FROM these charts devised by their teacher, Wynn Westover, the music students learn to sight read by substituting numbers on the scale, one to eight, instead of the usual, "do, re, mi . . ." UNDER THE DIRECTION of their instructor, Wynn Westover, members of the Dominican College sight reading and ear training class sing notes as numerals. formers, including children, choir singers, chamber musicians and 'popular' artists. Many are also studying at Bay Area universities, colleges and music schools."

HOW WESTOVER teaches his course was observed in a recent workshop demonstration at Dominican College.

One of the most interesting features of his method is the visual materials he has devised in the form of sound and rhythm charts. The sound sections of each set train the student to learn music notes by sight singing, and the rhythm section trains him to keep a steady constant rhythm in the performance of rhythmic patterns.

Westover says he finds that the techniques he uses are not for use with younger children but are best adapted to age 7 and above.

THE WORKSHOP consists of singing, keeping time and writing, making use of his visual materials and dictation of music.

The first step is the learning of notes of the scale by number instead of solfeggio (do re mi fa so la ti do) because Westover feels that the intervals between notes are better realized in this manner since people are used to thinking in numbers.

For example, numbers one to three show the skip of one note better than do-mi. In this way the eye and ear are trained together.

THE CLASS opened with a description of how the eight notes of the scale are represented by numbers. After singing the scale and the basic tonic triad, the class then followed a number sheet, which they sang using numbers.

Singing "la," Westover then dictated a sequence and the class wrote the numbers of the tones heard.

The same number sheets can also be sung using the letter names of a given key in place of numbers, and later the class did some of this in the key of C.

NEXT WAS A note-reading sheet with the class singing with numbers the notes on the staff sheet.

Another dictation succeeded this with Westover singing tones with numbers, the class taking it by writing notes directly onto musical staff paper. He emphasized that people who cannot read or write music usually pick these procedures up easily as the class progresses.

The rhythm part of the workshop began with a metronome sheet (shown in background of

"What Happened To My Box-Stored Sweaters?"

You stored your sweaters in a plastic box and threw in some moth balls to insure against mildew and moth damage. The idea was good, but the manner in which it was carried out was not.

Moth balls or crystals should NEVER be used in a platic box nor should they be used where garments with plastic trim are stored. Mothballs and some crystals release a gas which will dissolve some plastics such as the plastic box in which you stored your sweaters, as well as plastic buttons, sequins, zippers, etc.

What happened inside your plastic box with the moth balls was a melting of the plastic from the moth ball gas. The melted plastic completely penetrated some parts of the sweaters and then hardened again. When you tried to remove them from the box, holes were torn in the sweaters.

Do not, I repeat, DO NOT store garments of any kind in plastic boxes in the presence of moth balls or moth crystals.

Record changers—anti skating—Bi-Radial Elliptical diamonds! Fancy terms commonly seen in changer and phonograph cartridge advertisements, but what do they mean?

The new modern record changers and the elaborate manual type players sporting separate tone arms now include a gadget to offset the anti-skating effect. Because of the rotation of the record, and the offset angle of the cartridge, the tone arm has a tendency to move inward toward the center of the record. This puts a greater pressure on the inner groove wall causing greater record wear, and right channel distortion. Because the newer tone arms track at extremely low pressures (play the groove with very little weight) the side thrust by the inner groove wall has become an appreciable force compared to the weight. In the past, the heavy weight of the tone arm was so large in comparison to this force that it did not get much consideration.

To counteract the above anti-skating force, the new arms have a weight device that pushes the tone arm out with a force equal to the arm force that is pressing against the inner groove; thus, the undesired groove force is cancelled out and there is less distortion and record wear.

Bi-Radial Elliptical diamond. Until this past year, most of the cartridges had a stylus (needle) that was cone shaped coming to a ball point at its end. For monural records, the round, or conical point as it is called, has a diameter of 1 mil (1/1000 inch) at its ball point. The most often used diameter for the stereo stylus is 0.7 mil which is slightly smaller than the mono stylus. The Elliptical stylus now being used in the more expensive stereo cartridges is egg shaped at its point; that is, wide in the dimension that rides across the record groove, and it is very narrow in the direction of the record groove. The theory is that the narrow end can vibrate accurately with the fastest and most complex modulations of the record groove. The wide end keeps the stylus from falling far down into the groove and becoming wedged (pinched) by the groove walls. This type of stylus makes even the most delicate musical passages quite transparent. The disadvantage of the elliptical stylus is that it can be used only with the finest of tone arms so that it can be adjusted to track at less than 1½ grams.

RHYTHM STRIPS showing time signatures and notes subdivided into their smallest possible time values are part of the rhythm materials used by Wynn Westover in his course on sight reading and ear training for music. Class members beat time with their hands, a procedure which they may use later in elementary conducting of music.

Made-In-Marin Method Of Teaching Music

Photo below). Westover explained that the purpose of the class counting through the notes and rests is to establish a subconscious metronomic rhythm and pulse.

REPETITION OF this metronomic counting over the months gets the students used to seeing the clear subdivisions of the notes' values, establishes the habit of reading the rests properly (a very common weakness) and eliminates the feeling of panic when sight reading groups of 16th and 32nd notes.

Then followed a series of rhythm-reading strips, which the class counted, analyzed and sang together. This step usually starts with simple rhythms.

The final activity involved a rhythm dictation to develop techniques of transcription and gradually combine the rhythm with melody dictation.

WESTOVER indicated some of the many advanced activities of the class as students' abilities grow, such as taking interval dictation while singing, and singing the number sheets in different rhythms.

The course has been endorsed and recommended by Marin County musicians Vlado Kolitsch and Charles Meacham.

An example of the efficiency of the method of simultaneous eye and ear training is one of Westover's students, 60 per cent deaf, who can now sing after taking the course.

WESTOVER holds a bachelor of arts degree from Wesleyan University in Connecticut, and after graduate study at Columbia University in New York he obtained his associate and licentiate diplomas in music teaching and performance from Trinity College in London, England.

A native of Lincoln, Nev., Wynn has lived with music almost from birth. His mother was a violinist and teacher. He received early training in music at the Hotchkiss School in Connecticut under a four-year scholarship.

When he came to California he married Virginia Lucy of Napa, also a musician, who helps him in many phases of his work.

He is also the author of a violin bowing analysis.

Tommy Conine—Mr. Taps Of Dancing

San Anselmo Artist Has Performed With Great Names Of Entertainment

By DON KEOWN

Tommy Conine looks upon the taps on the bottoms of his dancing shoes as musical instruments.

"They are just as much instruments as the sax or the piano," he declares. "Of course, they are most closely related to the percussion instruments."

"And," he adds, "when properly performed, the sound of the taps can be just as exciting as any drum."

TOMMY CONINE has been sounding the taps on the bottoms of his flashing feet for 30 years now.

Billed as "America's foremost jazz tap dancer," he has enjoyed a career that has seen him dancing with the likes of John Bubbles, Raymond Winfield, the Condos Brothers, Baby Lawrence and Ray Malone; has seen him appear on such television shows as Ed Sullivan's (10 times), Sid Caesar's "The Show of Shows" and Steve Allen's, and has seen him on the movie screen.

Today he's a San Anselmo resident and a partner in The Dance Workshop at 558 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo, where he and Bea Dorsett Blum, with whom he first danced when they were children in San Francisco and with whom he has been associated through much of his professional career, teach tap and freestyle ballet dance with a heavy emphasis on modern jazz.

ALSO A PARTNER in the enterprise is Bea Blum's husband, Al, a headliner eccentric dancer who has been associated with such greats as Ben Blue.

Conine says he began his dancing at the age of 9 in the San Francisco studio of Charlie and Doris Aaron.

"As a kid I used to work in a delicatessen," he recalls. "Charlie Aaron heard me singing in the kitchen while I was chopping onions. He decided I had talent. And he took me under his wing."

Tommy's earliest lessons were in acrobatic dancing and as a boy soprano.

"BUT PRETTY soon I was doing tap dances," he says. "Charlie Aaron was a tap dancer and a great one. I guess I caught the bug from him. He taught me everything he knew, and I liked it so well it became my favorite form of expression."

It was at the Aaron studio that young Conine first met and danced with Beatrice Dorsett.

"We did all the usual recitals," Tommy says, "and then Bea and I, while we were still kids, put together our own show and toured the army camps in the Bay Area. We held the record for most appearances at the USO canteen in San Francisco."

THOSE WERE the days, Tommy says, when great tap dancers were popular favorites in the entertainment world—"the Astaires, the Powells, the Murphys, the Robinsons, Buck and Bubbles, Tip, Tap and Toe . ."

Conine says: "I have always looked up to Fred Astaire and considered him the greatest dancer I ever saw."

But he adds: "Of course, my style and feeling in tapping is altogether different from Astaire's. It's much closer to jazz music."

As a result of this jazz feeling in his dancing, Conine has performed frequently with leading jazz combos in the clubs. He toured extensively with the Stan Kenton band. Recently he worked with Earl (Fatha) Hines at the great pianist's own club on Oakland's Jack London Square.

HIS NIGHT CLUB appearances through the years have included "almost all of the big ones," he says. And he continues to be much in demand.

His motion picture appearance was in the musical "Variety Girl" with Bing Crosby and Bob Hope. Earlier he had received his first "big break" with Joaquin Garay at San Francisco's Copacabana.

"Spike Jones saw me there, got me the movie part and took me on tour with his band," Tommy says.

In more recent years, tap dancing has fallen into a serious decline, Conine admits.

"SOME OF THE great ones passed away or retired," he says. "And the replacements weren't there, simply because tap dancing was so badly taught and so poorly understood."

"The tap dancer became almost an unknown in the entertainment business," Conine adds.

Conine believes, however, that a reversal of that trend is now under way.

"I think it got a big push in the comeback of Eleanor Powell. Ann Miller is another enjoying a big upsurge of popularity right now. And, of course, Fred Astaire never left the scene."

THE MAIN obstacle, Conine thinks, continues to lie in old-fashioned teaching methods.

"There must be freedom of movement and of expression, in keeping with the present times," he asserts. "All the more modern rhythms must be worked into the dances. The music must be up-to-date. A touch of the frug or any of the new dances catches and holds the interest of the kids.

"I think 'freestyle' is the key word," he declares.

And he adds: "Along with the feeling for rhythm and for improvising, the secret to good tap dancing is the building of technique. And a good solid knowledge of music is essential."

OF HIS OWN beginnings, he says: "I used to practice all

TOMMY CONINE AND his partner, Bea Blum, demonstrate exactly what they mean by the freeform style of ballet and tap dancing in which their San Anselmo studio specializes. Conine, billed as the foremost jazz tap dancer in the country, feels that the decline of that art can be traced largely to the failure of its teachers to keep pace with the new music and rhythms. But he sees signs that tap dancing is already on its way back in popularity.

day. And as I look back, I don't regret those hours. I loved it."

Today he continues to devote long hours to personal practice after his teaching schedule or club appearances have been completed.

"I dance all day," he says.

One of Conine's pet peeves—gimmicks, such as jingle bells, or coins that jangle inside the taps.

"What I want to hear is the good, clean sound of taps hitting the floor," he says.

THE TAPS themselves haven't changed in the 30 years that Tommy has been dancing—"same size, same metal (aluminum)."

"They call them Morgan taps after the man who developed them," he explains. "He's dead now."

The Conines have seven children, ages 2½ to 15, six girls and one boy. All dance.

Wife Joannie is the only non-dancer in the family.

Partners Al and Bea Blum have two sons. And both dance.

THEY OPENED their San Anselmo studio last March, coming to Marin from San Francisco.

From there, says Tommy, he is carrying on his campaign "for the development of the new freeform, modern jazz tap dance."

"The message I'm trying to put across," he declares, "is that good tap dancing is as much an art form as ballet. In fact, in one sense, more so. For tap dancing is both visual and sound."

FATHER KNOWS BEST when it comes to tap dancing in the Tommy Conine family, so daughters Christine and Kathleen watch intently while their famous dad demonstrates a tricky step. Conine has seven children. And all are dancers.

Daniel O'Connell—A Beloved Bohemian

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

The granite bench at Bulkley and Harrison near downtown Sausalito is a familiar Marin landmark.

But few people who enjoy the use of the small rest area know anything of the brilliant man to whom the bench was dedicated as a memorial.

Daniel O'Connell was a true Bohemian in the highest and best sense of the word.

IN THE FOREWORD to a book of O'Connell poems, published after his death, an admirer, identified only by the initials W.G.H., wrote a brief biography of the poet.

Said that biographer: "I knew, and I think understood, O'Connell. Our friendship covered a quarter of a century of California's growth. . . . I knew him as poet, literateur, athlete, humorist and Bohemian. His good humor was inexhaustible, his nature sunny and his temper exceptionally sweet.

"But under the jester's garb there was a nature, strong, deep and extremely reflective, a mind that dealt with all the problems of life, that dared to question, that dared to ask why.

"HE WAS IN love with nature and she was generous in her gifts to him. He was an excellent boxer, a capital wrestler, a splendid swordsman, a great angler and loved all kinds of outdoor life.

"Bohemian as he was, he knew nothing of idleness, mental or physical. His pen was ever busy with the things of life.

"His desire to spend far exceeded his capacity to acquire. It would follow that he would frequently find himself in short straits, and that his table would be decorated by suggestion only. I have dined with him when the 'banquet' was almost entirely intellectual and the simple meal was made luxurious by the wealth of his humor and the beauty of his thoughts.

"THE RICH organ-like tone of his voice was a moral tonic. With all his humor, indeed, because of his humor, O'Connell was a reverent man."

Daniel O'Connell, grand nephew of Irish patriot and statesman Daniel O'Connell, known as the "great liberator," was born in the historic town of Ennis, County Clare, Ireland, in 1849. He received his early education at the Jesuit college in Dublin, and when he came to California, studied at Santa Clara College, now the University of Santa Clara.

He was a founding member of the Bohemian Club in San Francisco when it was organized in April of 1872.

O'CONNELL SHOCKED staid residents of Sausalito when he moved there with his wife and children. He set up tents on the beach, one for his wife and himself, another for their children, a third for cooking and dining.

Later the O'Connells bought a hillside house.

The late George H. Harlan of Sausalito, one of the early presidents of the Marin County Historical Society and a prominent lawyer, often spoke of Dan O'Connell.

Harlan was 5 years old when he first met the Irish poet and his family. He knew the seven youngsters only by their nicknames and remembered Gipsy, black haired with flashing dark eyes; Cooey (Coquette) a blonde; Gerry (Geraldine) and two red-haired boys, Charlie and the Judge, the last so-called because he was the only serious one of the family.

THE CHILDREN, wearing ragged clothing, romped along the beach, carefree and laughing. Harlan said the youngsters adored their father.

Miss Fanny Shoobert, another long-time resident of Sausalito, whom I interviewed a short time before her death, recalled that when she was a girl she envied the O'Connell children: "They ran around the town wearing no hats, which at that time was a little shocking, but they were happy and healthy."

Harlan also said that Dan O'Connell "had no sense of responsibility and absolutely no idea of the value of money."

HE WENT ON to tell of the time Dan O'Connell had told Harlan's father he was afraid his house would fall down as so much of the underpinning had been used for firewood.

Leftovers from feasts at the Bohemian Club provided many meals for the O'Connell family. And after the table was cleared O'Connell, in his rich, vibrant voice, would recite some of his poems.

He was always surrounded by friends and was the idol of the Bohemian Club and became its poet laureate. He was writing a history of the club at the time of his death.

HARLAN SAID of Dan O'Connell: "He had his own kingdom in Sausalito where he reigned supreme."

He told how he had taken fencing lessons from Dan when he was 15. Although the poet had grown stout, he was still in perfect physical condition and amazingly agile.

Harlan said another reason for O'Connell's popularity was his kindness, and recalled the time in 1894 when he and four others were graduating from San Rafael High School. The principal had asked the graduates to produce a class play. Harlan went to Dan and asked him to write one. The poet wrote a clever farce which was a great success.

THE FIVE graduates chipped in to buy a meerschaum pipe for the poet as an expression of their gratitude.

Dan O'Connell, like many other artists, delighted in making exotic dishes. He wrote an article on table etiquette because he despised the slovenly feeder.

The poet had a wonderful background for his writing—a scholarly family, good education and a knowledge of the world. His father, Charles O'Connell, was a distinguished lawyer. Many of the relatives had served in Parliament, and among his kin were members of the family in Derrynane, home of the great Irish liberator.

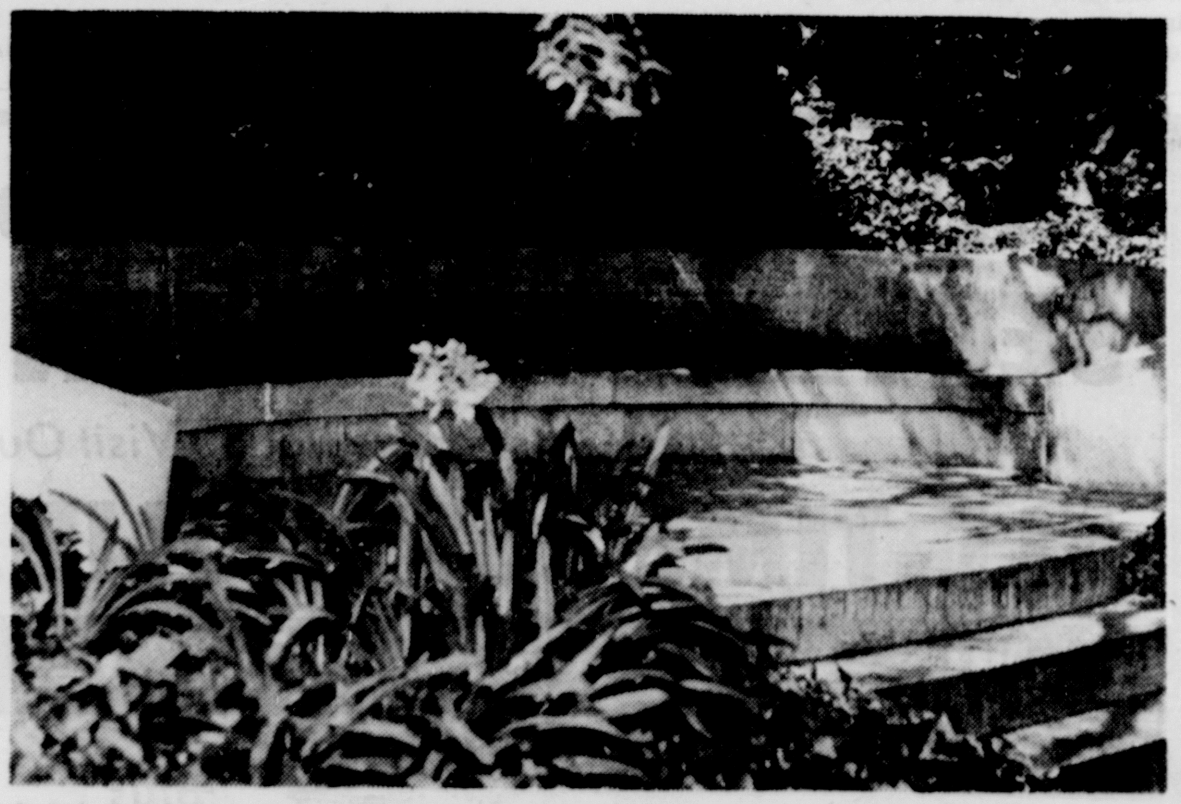

HE SPOKE the language of his forebears, Celtic, rich and dramatic in tone.

After his mother and sister were drowned when their coach upset in the Grand Canal reservoir, young Daniel was commissioned in the British Navy. He sailed to faraway places and knew people in many lands.

He finally came to New York giving up his career on shipboard, and was the guest of a bachelor uncle. When the latter died, young Daniel came to San Francisco. After he completed his education at Santa Clara, he went to work for a San Francisco daily newspaper. He would work long enough to put aside some money, then leave to devote all his time to writing poetry. Only when all his money was gone would Dan O'Connell take another job with a newspaper. He had no trouble getting work because of his journalistic style and ready wit.

Sausalito Was Fond Of First Bohemian

HUMORIST and poet, journalist and athlete, Daniel O'Connell was also one of Sausalito's first true Bohemians. Born in Ireland in 1849, he died in Sausalito in 1899 after a colorful life.

O'CONNELL HAD a wife who understood and adored him and who enjoyed the Bohemian life with her husband. She was the former Anne Ashley, daughter of Sen. Delos R. Ashley. They were married in 1874.

The Bohemian Club in its early years had a difficult time financially. Most of the members were endowed with talent but not with money. But gradually the club grew and attracted wealthy men.

Dan O'Connell wrote several plays for the club and other dramas for production elsewhere.

With Henry George, O'Connell founded the Evening Post in San Francisco. He wrote a novel, "A Special Deposit," in collaboration with his great friend and patron, James V. Coleman; an opera, "Bluff King Hal," in collaboration with Dr. H. J. Stewart, and a drama, "The Red Fox."

AS FAR AS can be ascertained, the poet and playwright only once left his Sausalito home to journey far away. He went to Hawaii where he was the guest of King Kalakaua and was given the red carpet treatment. His wit and his friendliness made him the darling of the court.

However, with all its beauty, Hawaii did not have the charm for him as did his Sausalito home, in what became known as O'Connell's Glen, and to which he soon returned.

In his "Lyrics," of which he published a volume, the poet moved his readers to laughter and then to tears. It is a strange coincidence that in the last of the lyrics, "Chamber of Silence," written just before his fatal illness, he voiced his farewell to the world.

After a week's battle with pneumonia, Dan O'Connell died at his Sausalito home Feb. 23, 1899.

The Bohemian Club accorded him its highest honor. His body was laid in state in the clubhouse and mourners from all walks of life came to pay him final tribute.

Not long after his death, admirers of Dan O'Connell had the granite memorial seat, engraved with one of his verses, erected on Bulkley Avenue in Sausalito.

O'Connell's poems are not read often today, but two, at least, are carved in stone—the one in Sausalito, the other at Colton Hall in Monterey, the early capital of California.

THE PUBLIC library in Sausalito has a book of O'Connell poems, but it is so precious it is not put into general circulation. The poem I like best is "The Refugee," inspired by Dan O'Connell's love of Sausalito.

The first verse goes:

A varying scene of mist and sun,
Of sleeping bay and purple hill;
And thither when the day is done
And all the noisy world is still,
And men sit down by happy hearths
And merry voices fill the air
And night's dark mantle folds the earth,
I come, a refugee from care.

The Minister And Integration

In Alabama And At Home, Ex-Marinite Serves Cause

By ALMA DINSMORE

Several months before the tragic outbreak of violence in Los Angeles, a Presbyterian minister, formerly of Marin, made an ironic prophecy: "Fifty years from now the racial climate in the South may be better than in the North."

A former assistant pastor at the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael and now minister of his own church in Berkeley, Rev. Glen Dale Hofstetter went on to explain that the civil rights demonstrations in the South "have let off steam and exposed a festering sore to the open air and light for healing."

Some of the same ills, he warned, still lie under the surface in other areas of the country.

GLEN Hofstetter's prediction paralleled a statement made by an Episcopal priest from Pittsburgh who said, "I saw in Selma what I had never realized was in Pittsburgh. Our discrimination is just more sophisticated up here."

Reverend Hofstetter was one of the 100 persons (ministers, theological students, and other citizens) from Marin County who went to Selma, Ala.

Some of those who went marched to Montgomery; others were part of work or provisioning crews.

One of Reverend Hofstetter's jobs was to run a taxi service along the same road Mrs. Viola Liuzzo traveled. In the social room of the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church in Montgomery he had coffee with Mrs. Liuzzo the day before she died.

BUT THIS tragedy did not diminish his faith in the rightness of the march itself.

Talking about his experiences in Alabama, he says, "The demonstrations told the Negroes, 'we're backing you'." And he recalls with warmth the grateful recognition of this fact by the many Negroes he came to know while he was there.

He recalls, too, the derision of white segregationists which he witnessed there, too, and he spoke bitterly of how they might have spoken after those moving days were over. "The circus is over and the clowns have gone home. But the Ku Klux Klan is still here."

THE EPISCOPALIAN priest from Pittsburgh, Rev. Dom Orsini, was one of a number of the clergy who returned from their participation in the protest in the South to a "boycott of silence" or sharp criticism from some of their congregation in the North. Reverend Hofstetter is more fortunate.

He is the pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Berkeley where he ministers to a congregation that is 45 per cent Negro and 55 per cent Caucasian. Though his parishioners did not actively demonstrate, they went with him by proxy.

Most of them being members of a low-income group, they raised money for his round-trip to Alabama by going out and ringing doorbells. In their collections were the contributions of City Councilman Wilmont Sweeney and the Holiness Church in Oakland.

THE ONLY reluctance expressed by Reverend Hofstetter's congregation about his joining the demonstrators was occasioned by their concern for his wife and small son, and for him, too.

Reverend Hofstetter returned from this demonstration of national importance which bore witness to the rights of Negroes to a workaday world wherein he ministers daily to persons, some of whom happen to be Negro and some, Caucasian.

"The conflicts we have in our church," he says, "are not racial conflicts, but the kind of personality conflicts that you'd find in any church, or in any other cross-section of society. And some of the major problems we have are socio-economic and class problems and biases."

WESTMINSTER Presbyterian Church of Berkeley was established in 1877 and became integrated during and after World War II. It is located on the edge of the industrial section of the city, where it ministers to families whose annual income often does not exceed $4,000. Nevertheless, Reverend Hofstetter says, Negroes look forward to moving there as a step up from the poorer and more heavily segregated areas of Oakland.

That integration has been satisfactory in West Berkeley is evidenced by the fact that the great majority of both the Negroes and the whites favor it and voted together against Proposition 14. Together, they want better living conditions, better jobs and better recreational facilities for all people, regardless of color, the minister says.

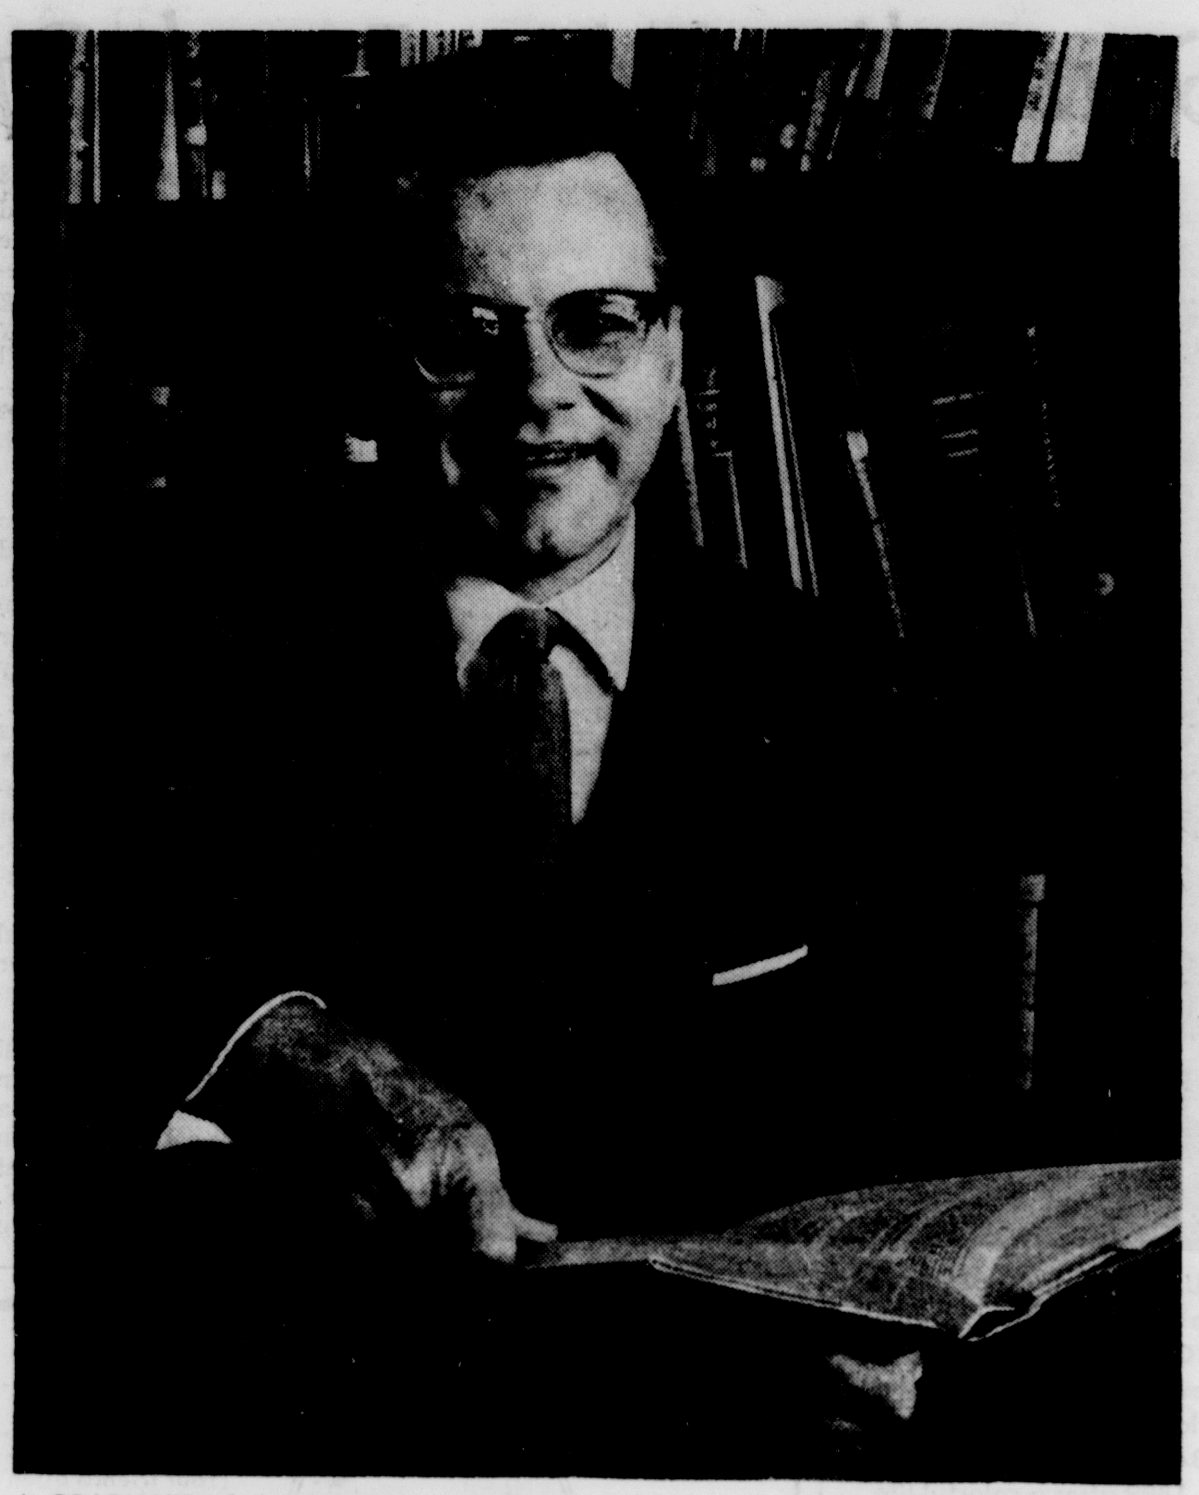

An example of the "under the surface" ills that are evidences of Northern discrimination is a clause that Reverend Hofstetter found on the deed to the house in Berkeley he recently bought for his family.

THE RESULT of economic problems which brought about strong anti-racial feeling in an earlier period of California's history, the clause, recorded in 1926, states that "no Negro, Japanese, Chinese, or peoples of other Mongolian races" may use the driveway to his home. By legislation, such clauses have been unenforceable since 1948 in our state.

"But," says Reverend Hofstetter, "that's not enough. That's like releasing someone from prison after he has served years for a crime he never committed, and then forcing him to wear across his chest a sign that says, 'I am a former inmate of San Quentin.' Even the signs have to be removed."

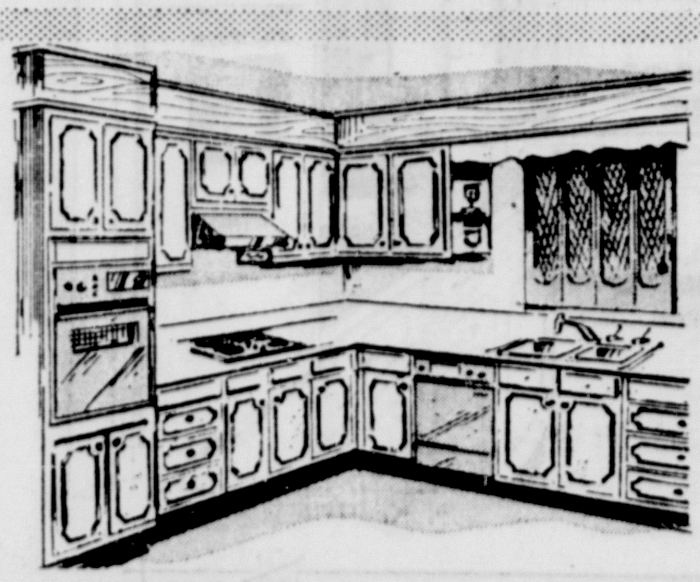

Assemblyman James R. Mills, in February of this year, introduced Assembly Bill 1334 which will enable (if passed) any person interested in real property within county jurisdiction which is subject to a racial restriction or provision to delete such restriction or provision. That would mean that any interested person or group could go into the county recorder's office and have removed from the documents such discriminatory phrases.

EFFORT ON behalf of this bill is but one of the many tasks confronting Reverend Hofstetter. Within his present ministry, he specifically hopes to improve the Christian education program of Westminster Church. Also, there are the ever present problems of campaigning for membership, and raising funds.

Crippled by polio at the age of 9, Glen Hofstetter knows well the struggle of human soul out of feelings of inferiority and towards a life of purpose.

He was almost 30 when he experienced the conversion that led him to the ministry. Before then, he had been a businessman, architectural designer, construction consultant and announcer, and at one time he operated a theatrical agency.

HE HAD joined a single adult group at the Hollywood Presbyterian Church because he could meet lots of pretty girls there, and it was on Labor Day in 1950 that he was converted. It was in another single adult group that he met Caroline Lorraine Utech, whom he married in 1952.

In 1962, their son Dale was born in San Rafael at Marin General Hospital.

Reverend Hofstetter attended Ohio State University, University of California at Los Angeles and Fresno State College. In June of 1961, he was graduated from the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

HE TAUGHT AT College of Marin for seven years, in group counseling, architectural drafting and engineering drafting. He served with the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael, where he was installed as assistant pastor in December of 1961.

Then, last year, he began the work at Westminster Presbyterian Church that has led him to the greatest possible awareness of the nation-wide integration needs of Negro and white in our time.

ANY SERVICE at the Berkeley Westminster Church, or business meeting of its congregation, such as the gathering above, is automatically an integrated affair. Pastor Rev. Glen Hofstetter says conflicts that arise are matters of personality, not race.

AN ATMOSPHERE OF dignity and warmth for attorneys, employees and clients alike was the aim of Casa Marin in the furnishing of the office suite of the law firm of Buresh, Garety, Vallarino and Costamagna in San Rafael's Kaehler-Farrar Building. Here in the office of Roger Garety, green and gold tones predominate. The floor covering is a mustard gold, the pull-up chairs covered in black naugahyde, the occasional chair and lamp an avocado green. The rich walnut paneling is matched by a walnut executive desk. Crest of arms on wall is in an antique bronze. (Photos by Ken Molino)

Dignified Decor In The Office

A comfortably furnished office can be as essential today to good living as an attractive home.

After all, most of us divide our waking hours about evenly between home and place of work.

With that in mind, Casa Marin, dealers in fine furniture and interior designers, accepted the challenge of furnishing the new eight-room office suite of the law firm of Buresh, Garety, Vallarino and Costamagna on the fourth floor of San Rafael's new Kaehler-Farrar Building.

SAYS MILTON Schwartz of Casa Marin: "What we wanted to achieve was a feeling of dignity and warmth."

He feels that the decor also provides a harmonious flow of furnishings and colors through all the offices, while providing enough differentials and contrasts to avoid drabness or monotony.

"Simplicity was another goal we kept in mind," he adds.

Mustard gold and avocado greens predominate in the carpeting and furniture fabrics. Office walls generally are a rich walnut mahogany, or a white. Desks and tables are in mahogany to go with the wall paneling. Marble desk-tops harmonize with black naugahyde chairs.

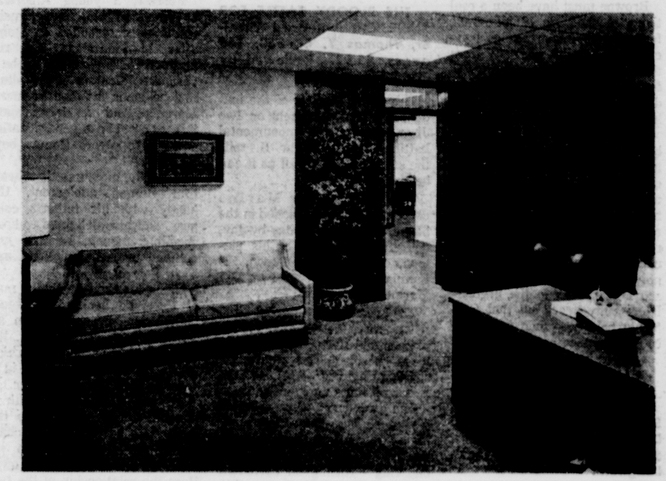

ACCESSORIES ON walls and desks are used with restraint and taste.

When Casa Marin had finished, Schwartz says, it felt that it had demonstrated that the designer's skill can do as much for the office and reception room as it can do for the home.

No longer, he adds, does a desk, chair and wastepaper basket plus filing cabinets constitute a "furnished office."

AT THE DESK in the reception room of Buresh, Garety, Vallarino and Costamagna is Donna Crevier. The return corner sectional is in a lighter, lemon peel, gold than the mustard gold of the carpet. Walls are white, the desk walnut. Small love seat can be seen at right. Fruitwood lamp has a white shade with mustard trim, and plaques are in old-metal finish.

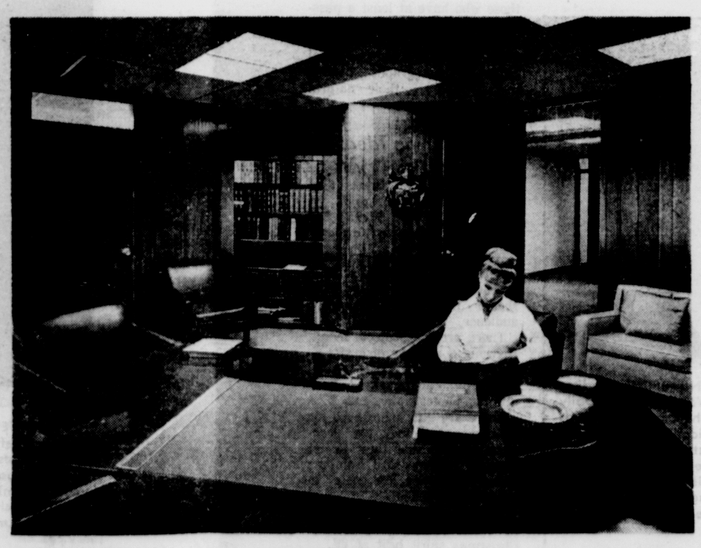

THIS VIEW FROM the reception room out into the hallway and an office beyond gives an idea of the harmony and smooth flow that has been achieved by Casa Marin in its decorating and furnishing of the law suite.

SECRETARY Deanne Dunnigan, at right, works at the gold-veined black marble-topped walnut desk in the office of P. Roy Vallarino. Again there is rich walnut paneling. Carpet is a mustard gold, chairs avocado green and black. There is a harmonious simplicity of decor that carries through all the offices of the law firm's suite.

THE OFFICE of David Costamagna, at left, with its white walls has an avocado green carpet, gold love seat, chairs in black, walnut end table, walnut desk with black marble top, colorful artificial plant and wall accessories in an old-metal finish.

FROM THE HALLWAY, you look into the reception room. The Oriental cabinets have an antique finish. Hallway walls are a mustard color as is the lamp, and carpet is a complimentary gold. Pictures feature greens and whites, as do the artificial flowers.

J. ROSS BROWNE, CONFIDENTIAL AGENT IN OLD CALIFORNIA by Richard H. Dillon, University of Oklahoma Press, 208 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

J. Ross Browne is known (though not too widely) as a humorist and travel writer, contemporary to the much-better-known Mark Twain during the latter's California and Nevada years.

He is now disclosed as one of the original efficiency experts, sent West by the federal government to ride herd on its appointees in the far-off territories of California, Oregon, Washington, Texas and Minnesota.

"J. Ross Browne — Confidential Agent in Old California" details the Pacific Coast portion of this employment, principally from Browne's own reports to the U.S. Treasury Department.

Browne must have been a real thorn in the side of numerous federal appointees as he traveled with special authority from the secretary of the treasury to ferret out pilfering, payroll padding and wrong-party politicking, among other misdeeds.

Marin's Richard H. Dillon has here added another valuable and interesting volume to the shelf of Californiana he began nearly a decade ago with "Bully Waterman." If Browne's "scathing appraisal of the cupidity of our romanticized and eulogized pioneer forebears" turns out to be not quite so shocking as native-son Dillon hints in the preface, it certainly bears out that California politics — then as now — could claim no special purity.

THE MISTRESS AND OTHER STORIES by Gina Berriault, E. Dutton & Co., 219 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Jean Langham.

A beautiful young woman undergoes the ordeal of finding her husband's health suddenly threatened.

A young Negro girl struggles toward maturity in her marriage in the experience of her first pregnancy.

A 7-year-old boy fears with good reason that his mother may not redeem him at the conclusion of a colorful birthday party.

This is but a small sampling of the range and variety of stories in this collection by Gina Berriault, who lives in Mill Valley. There are 15 in all, many of which have already appeared in such journals as Harper's Bazaar, Esquire, and The Paris Review; her reputation is further strengthened by the previous publication of two novels, "The Descent" and "Conference of Victims."

Each of the stories presented here corroborates the initial impression that this is the work of a craftsman skilled in the demanding form of the short story. The characters are sharply yet subtly defined in their struggle with some ordeal or foible of human nature. Then the hard kernel of "truth" is suddenly revealed, perhaps in a single succinct paragraph (the reader begins to anticipate this trademark with each story), a neat trick and always gracefully accomplished. Not only does she handle character deftly, but also constructs an absorbing story line.

Gina Berriault will certainly increase an already appreciative audience with her collection of stories and it is hoped that she will continue to produce more work of this quality.

Monumental Fight

THE BLOODY BATTLE FOR SURIBACHI by Richard Wheeler, Thomas Y. Crowell, 148 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

This short account of the battle for Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima, one of the monumental battles of World War II, tells the story about as well as it can be told.

Wheeler, a former Marine corporal who was wounded in the battle, recreates the day-by-day, hour-by-hour action of his platoon, the Third Platoon, E Company, Second Battalion, 28th Marines.

The reader is carried into battle with the 46 men of the platoon and shown their courage, fears, heroism and weariness, fighting against odds in the midst of war's fury.

One wonders why Wheeler waited so long before releasing his story, but he probably was nettled by the fact that the second flag - raising on Suribachi has become world famous because of a photo by press photographer Joe Rosenthal.

Wheeler stresses the fact that his platoon accomplished the first flag-raising on Suribachi, and the jacket cover carries a picture of the first flag-raising.

The book is illustrated with battle maps and photos by Louis R. Lowery, taken at Iwo Jima.

The Astronauts

GEMINI, America's Historic Walk in Space, by United Press International, Prentice-Hall, $2.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This book is a disappointment.

Perhaps remembering how the public gobbled up their presentation of that drama that surrounded the assassination of John F. Kennedy, the UPI team again digressed from furnishing spot news to communications media to publishing themselves, and—missed the mark. The result is a slim volume with non-numbered pages, photos that have either sketchy captions or no captions at all, and great gaps in connecting the whole epic of astronaut Edward H. White's daring venture. Perhaps the volume's compilers were reaching too hard for some angle other publications didn't already have.

Affair In Rome

TWO PEOPLE by Donald Windham, Coward - McCann, 252 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

"Promiscuous encounters (with men) are to Italian boys what ice cream sodas . . . are to their American counterparts," a compatriot assures Forrest.

Forrest, a young American businessman who finds himself emotionally stranded in Rome after his marriage has run aground, discovers this to be a vast simplification of the situation he lands in when he meets Marcello. And one does suspect this startling generalization does not apply to Roman boys per se.

Marcello, of course, is a beautiful Roman adolescent. Unhappy with his father's coldness, and also delighted to have spending money, he has succumbed to casual pick-ups and so to Forrest.

Given his premise that a man of Forrest's background would drift so heedlessly into an affair with a 17-year-old boy, the author offers an absorbing treatment of the situation in a sensible and direct manner.

All too often novels with a homosexual theme tend to the lurid and extreme; the characters are usually shown inhabiting a world of their own. Here the relationship of the two people is shown as a not uncommon part of everyday life. Marcello's girl friend, his family, his schoolwork continue to occupy him when he adds Forrest to his circle.

Forrest, cut loose from his ordinary life in a different culture, of course has a different perspective. The two points of view are deftly contrasted as the affair unfolds.

A definite plus is the setting, the surface Rome that tourists bring home. One can almost see and breathe the street scenes mirrored in Windham's clear, economical prose.

PROVERBS AND COMMON SAYINGS FROM THE CHINESE by Arthur H. Smith, Dover Publications, 374 pages, paperbound, $2.25. Reviewed by Larry Kramer Jr.

This is a specialized book that attempts to bring the author's 50 years of experience in the Chinese language to the aid of the Western student of Chinese first coming to China.

The bulk of the book is not for the lay reader. It pre-supposes a knowledge of Chinese culture and language that most Americans don't have, and even includes the Chinese characters for every pun and proverb. This makes the work of inestimable value for the serious student of the Chinese language, but rather heavy going for the casual reader.

Nevertheless, the section on "The Value of Chinese Proverbs" provides insights into Chinese thinking that are provocative, thoughtful and probably not outdated by the current Maoist-Marxist overlay. As the author says: ". . . every Chinese proverb contributes something toward an apprehension of the point of view from which . . . a great and ancient family of mankind looks upon the tangled web of human life . . ."

The index is excellent, and that makes the book fun to dip into. "Memory" in the index leads us to "The palest ink is better than the most capacious memory." "Rich" provides us with a tale with the moral: "Men honor the rich—even dogs bite those with ragged clothes."

If the reader takes this book the way lunch is taken at the Hang Ah Tea Room—savoring a tidbit here and a tidbit there —both nutrition and pleasure are provided.

Animal Behavior

THE YEAR OF THE GORILLA by George B. Schaller, paperback reprint, Ballantine, 285 pages, 75 cents. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

If a gorilla could write, this might well be his diary.

Schaller, an adventurous zoologist, virtually lived with gorillas in East Central Africa to compile his account of their day-by-day activities.

Reminiscent of "Born Free," but on a broader scale, his work brings forth details that could not be gathered in any other way.

Schaller's experience not only has merit for scholars, but will fascinate laymen, particularly those who have at least a passing interest in animal behavior.

The style is readable and fast-paced and there are several pages of photographs showing the gorillas in their natural habitat.

Christmas Ideas

GIFTS YOU CAN MAKE by editors of Sunset Books and Sunset Magazine, Lane, 96 pages, softcover, $1.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

With Christmas fast approaching, this well illustrated manual of simple handicraft projects should find an appreciative audience.

There are 125 projects in all, covering a number of crafts — woodwork, cooking, sewing, gardening, candlemaking, metalwork, photography, etc.

There are gift suggestions for everyone. And they are practical, both in that they do not demand extreme skill from the maker, and they are useful to the lucky recipient.

Such handmade items, somehow, still seem to express the Christmas spirit best of all.

THIS PHOTOGRAPH by Louis R. Lowery shows the first flag-raising over the still unconquered summit of Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima, according to Richard Wheeler in his "Bloody Battle for Suribachi." But it was the Joe Rosenthal photo of the second flag-raising that won fame for its cameraman and its subjects.

RETURN TO GLORY by Bil Levy, World Publishing Co., 240 pages, $4.95.

COMMONSENSE GRAMMAR AND STYLE by Robert E. Morsberger, Crowell, 350 pages, $6.95.

Call it treason if you will, but we have never been a San Francisco 49er fan.

We brought to the Bay Area with us an enthusiasm for the Cleveland Browns acquired during our Midwestern sports-writing days. To this we subsequently added an interest in the Baltimore Colts, based largely upon our admiration for peerless quarterback John Unitas.

It was, therefore, with a feeling of special anticipation that we picked up a copy of Bill Levy's newly published "Return to Glory: The Story of the Cleveland Browns."

The results were a blend of satisfaction and disappointment.

Satisfaction because, judged from the standard of most of these kind of sports books, "Return to Glory" is certainly adequate, and perhaps better.

Disappointment, however, because we had hoped for something less orthodox.

The Browns would seem to lend themselves to such a treatment.

Their won-loss record in the bitterly competitive National Football League, and before that in the All-American Conference, verges on the unbelievable. They have been the New York Yankees of pro football. And they have achieved their dominance in the face of a leveling draft system by which baseball's Yanks have been untroubled.

The history of the Browns is replete with thrilling exploits. And some of the most colorful, most accomplished and most controversial characters in sports have drawn Brown paychecks.

First and foremost, of course, is Paul Brown, the coach for whom the team was named. A dour disciplinarian and perfectionist, almost single-handedly he won astounding successes and brought new dimensions to the sport with his astute innovations. Time eventually caught up with him. But his imprint is stamped indelibly upon the game, still apparent in every play you witness from the stands or on your television screen.

On the player roster, the Browns have boasted three super-stars: Quarterback Otto Graham, rivaled only by Unitas as the all-time greatest at that key position; Lou Groza, phenomenal placekicker; and Jimmy Brown, hardest running back in the history of football.

There have been others only a notch or two lower on the scales — the great ends Mac Speedie and Dante Lavelli, powerhouse fullback Marion Motley, defensive stalwart Len Ford, Ed Modzelewski, Dub Jones, Frank Ryan, Ray Renfro, Bobby Mitchell, Ken Carpenter, huge Forrest Grigg.

There was also the tragic Ernie Davis, who seemingly headed for professional greatness after a brilliant career at Syracuse University, died of leukemia before he could ever appear in uniform before Cleveland fans. Levy tells this sad chapter in Browns' history especially well.

JIMMY BROWN
A super-star

All these are covered in Levy's book. But the coverage is often the kind that could also be found in newspaper files and team records. Too often, Levy indulges in virtual play-by-play accounts of specific games, using all the usual sportswriting cliches. A closer "inside" look at the Browns, their problems and their tactics, would have been a more worthwhile use of that space. This, however, is not to say that there is none of that kind of insight in the book. What there is of it, particularly that dealing with the characters of the two Browns, coach and fullback, add zest to the book.

Brown fans and other close followers of pro football will also appreciate the statistical tables at the back of the book.

ENGLISH professor and author Robert E. Morsberger continues his campaign for clarity in both our spoken and written language in his latest book, "Commonsense Grammar and Style."

His book, Morsberger says, derives from "Commonsense Grammar" by Columbia University's Janet Ranken Aiken, first published in 1936 and since printed in four additional editions.

Mrs. Aiken's approach to rhetoric struck a new note in its time. In an era of Latinate absolutes, she struck out for a more liberal, tolerant attitude toward our language. Practicality was her watchword.

The publisher, Thomas Y. Crowell Co. of New York, had planned to reissue the Aiken book yet again. But close examination showed that even that work, progressive though it was in its time, had become outdated.

Professor Morsberger, author of "How to Improve Your Verbal Skills," was asked to rewrite "Commonsense Grammar." The result is what is essentially a completely new book, although the basic Aiken approach and outlook are retained.

Morsberger keeps his book light and interesting while making his point — that grammar must, if it is to serve us well, be sensible and practical. He relies heavily upon examples to demonstrate that point. He covers a lot of ground. And what he says should be of interest and of help to all of us in capitalizing upon the vibrant flexibility of our language without abusing that attribute.

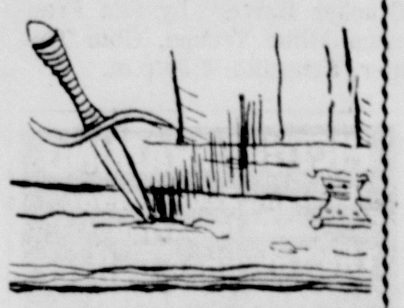

FAWCETT HAS just published a new revised edition of its very convenient paperback Webster's office and school dictionary under the Crest imprint.

In addition to definitions adequate for most needs, there is a section on synonyms and antonyms and such general information as listings of legal holidays, census figures, national parks, weights and measures tables, etc.

It's a big 75 cents worth.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

Mercury Records has done almost more than any other record label for the field of American music.

Their series of discs, usually featuring Howard Hanson and the Eastman-Rochester Orchestra, has spread the word for this music effectively, though it has stayed in fairly conservative channels and eschewed the atonal. Now Mercury has re-channeled many of these recordings of seven to 10 years ago for a sensation of depth and separation in stereo and re-released them in new combinations which give the listener about a full hour of music per disc, whereas the originals frequently had even less than a half-hour.

MACDOWELL: Indian Suite No. 2; GRIFFES: The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan, The White Peacock, Bacchanale, Poem for Flute and Orchestra —Eastman-Rochester Orchestra with Howard Hanson—Mercury Stereo SR 90422:

The first mono release about a decade ago of the MacDowell suite generated much interest among hi fi fans for its wide dynamic range and fine response, as well as the attractive music which was completely new to most of us. The same things could be said of the Griffes recording, a slightly later release.

The late works of this young American composer were as fine as anything ever done in the impressionistic vein, and quite unimitative of Debussy and Ravel. The best-known is of course "The Peacock," as a piano piece. But the tone-painting of "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan" is really something to soak yourself in and allow to carry you away on a major carpet of fantasy.

A mystical, Oriental sort of spirit is alive in this music, and it is sad that its unique composer died so early and is even today insufficiently recognized.

By the way, one of the five Griffes pieces on the original mono lp, "Clouds," was omitted from this release. Why, I don't know, because side one of the lp contains over 33 minutes of music and there was time to spare on side two for "Clouds."

The mono version will still be worthwhile to have also for the fascinating Loeffler works it contains in addition to the Griffes.

THE MUSIC OF SAMUEL BARBER: Symphony No. 1; Overture to The School for Scandal; Medea Suite; Adagio for Strings—Eastman-Rochester Orchestra with Howard Hanson—Mercury Stereo SR 90420:

This is some of the most approachable and interesting music of this leading American composer, in exciting performances by Hanson. "The Medea Suite" is the longest of the works, and was originally written under the title "The Serpent Heart" for dancer Martha Graham.

The stereo re-creation is quite good although some bass is lost over the mono originals on all these re-releases.

HARRIS: Symphony No. 3; COPLAND: Symphony No. 3; Quiet city — Eastman-Rochester Orchestra with Howard Hanson and Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra with Antal Dorati — Mercury Stereo SR 90421:

The 1938 symphony by Roy Harris, a sorely neglected American composer, is available in a better, and genuine stereo performance of the Copland Third Symphony on Everest, but this one by Dorati and the Minneapolis is so much more brilliant and exciting that it wins hands down.

Prepare The Ceiling Before You Paint

Everybody who has anything to do with advising householders about painting is continually stressing the necessity of preparing the surfaces properly.

More than any other single factor, the failure to apply paint to a clean, sound surface is responsible for a poor result. This is true whether referring to interior or exterior painting and regardless of the type of material being painted.

Perhaps the most neglected surface, from the standpoint of preparation, is the ceiling.

IT MAY BE that painting a ceiling is a nuisance in any case—and the thought of spending considerable time perched on a ladder or other support, merely for the purpose of getting the ceiling ready to receive the paint, is enough to provide an excuse for skipping this part of the job. It can often be a sad mistake, because a poorly painted ceiling can ruin the entire appearance of a room, no matter how much care and time have taken on redecorating the walls.

All loose paint should be scraped, and any cracks or holes filled with spackling compound or patching plaster.

The openings should be undercut before making the patch. This means cutting slightly under the plaster edges, so that the bottom of the patch is wider than the top. If this is not done, there is a possibility that the new mixture will begin to drip before it has had a chance to harden.

PROFESSIONAL painters sometimes mix the spackling compound with plaster of paris for patching ceilings, as the plaster of paris will aid the mixture to harden faster. They then apply a little paint over the patch and wait for it to dry before doing over the entire ceiling.

More than any other ceiling in the house, the one in the kitchen should be washed thoroughly befor any painting is done. Grease has a habit of collecting on the kitchen ceiling. It may appear to be nothing more than surface dirt that can be brushed off, as is sometimes the case in other rooms. But the odds are that it is grease which will not yield to anything else but detergent or soap and a scrubbing brush.

An ordinary wash rag is not enough. Only the bristles of a scrubbing brush will do the trick—and even then, considerable elbow grease is necessary.

Incidentally, always paint a ceiling before doing the walls. And it is very seldom that a room can be painted without doing the ceiling. Even though the ceiling may appear to be in pretty good shape, it will suddenly assume a dingy appearance once new paint has been put on the walls.

NEW MARINE plywood and fast-setting glues simplify the construction of the utility boat pictured above. An even bigger assist comes in the form of an Easi-Bild pattern. Send $1.50 to Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, and ask for Utility Boat Pattern No. 85. The pattern lists exact size and length of each part with full-size templates that do away with guess work. Bolt and screw holes are shown in their proper positions.

There Have Been Many Improvements In Windows

It's nice to have custom-made windows in the home you are remodeling or buying.

But if money is important (how's that again?), specify standard-size windows wherever possible. They are precision-made for easy installation and operation, and for weathertight fit.

Many developments and materials have been introduced in recent years to improve the performance of windows.

WOOD HANGS on to its popularity for residential sash and frames because of its insulating qualities and appearance.

Among the special features available in modern wood windows are lift-out sash and removable grills which simplify washing and painting.

Also available are stock units with insulating glass to give maximum protection against heat loss and condensation and eliminate the chore of putting up or taking down storm windows. Stock windows of Ponderosa pine are chemically treated for durability and come fitted with engineered hardware and weatherstripping.

BASIC STYLES are:

The double-hung window — a versatile, widely used type. It is considered a must in traditional homes and yet is also appropriate with virtually every other architectural design. This window has two sashes; one is raised from the bottom and the other is lowered from the top.

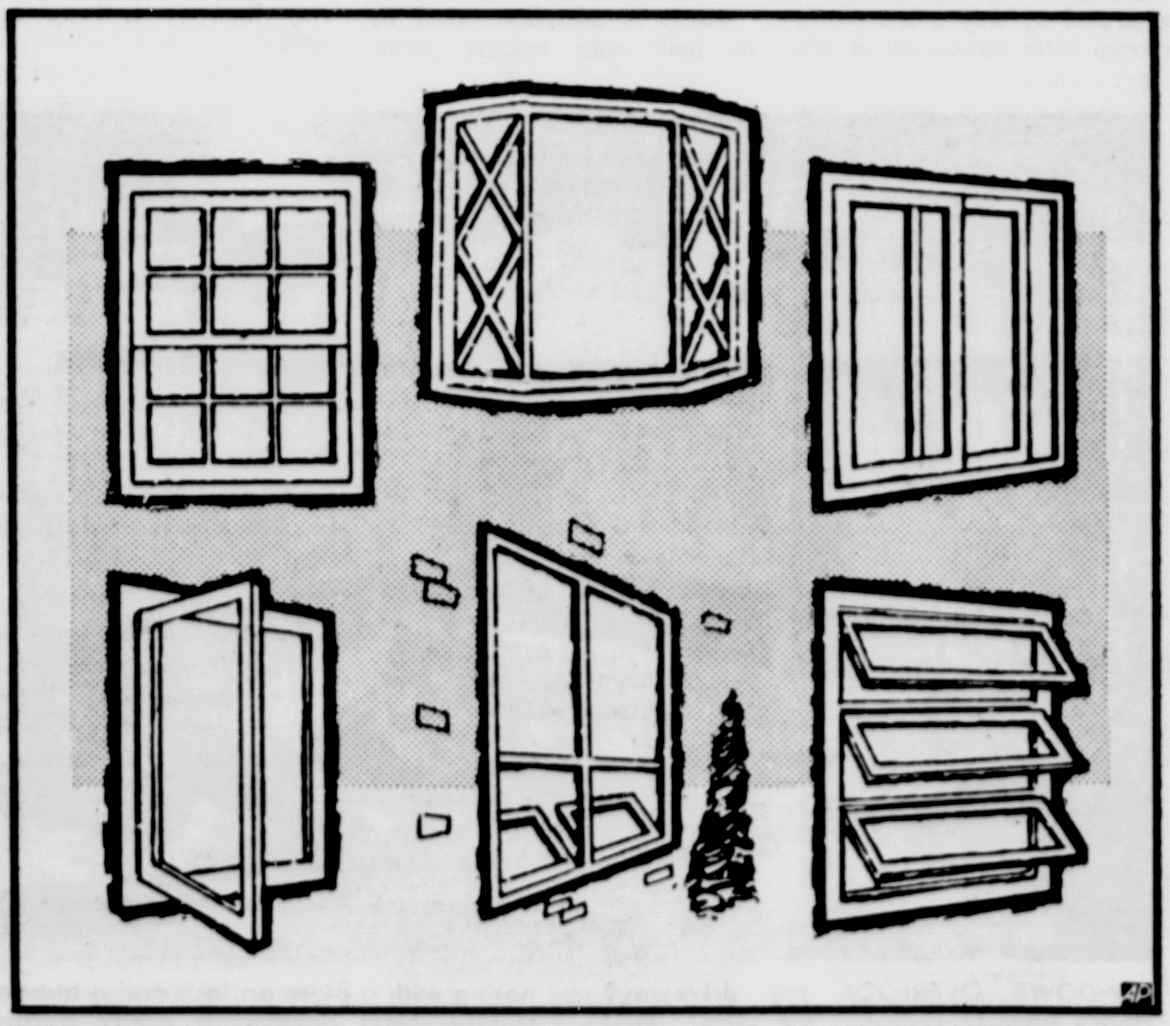

The awning window — opens up and out for full ventilation. It is popular for modern homes and for enclosed porches and breezeways. When open, it forms an "awning" that keeps out rain while letting in air.

The hopper unit — similar to awning, except that it opens in and down. Like awning windows, hoppers are often grouped vertically to form a bank of windows, or in a horizontal row high in a wall when ventilation and light are needed but privacy is also a consideration — in bedrooms, for example.

Casement windows—favorites in both traditional and contemporary homes. This style opens out and to one side. A wood casement window is a wise choice for use above a sink or in other awkward locations in the kitchens and bathrooms because of its unusual ease of operation.

Sliding wood windows— widely used in contemporary homes. They are designed to open at a touch and to close securely.

A fixed sash window does not open, and hence, cannot provide ventilation by itself.

For A Workhorse, Plant The Barberry

Looking for a workhorse of a shrub?

One that makes a showy, medium-sized hedge, barrier, or background, or border plant, and yet asks for no special coddling at all?

Then take a look at some of the members of the barberry family and see if they fit in your scheme.

THE EVERGREEN Darwin barberry is highly rated as an informal hedge because of its fountain - like growth habit, thickly clustered orange-yellow flowers in spring, and dark blue fruits that last well into winter.

A medium sized shrub with dark green holly-like foliage that takes on bronze tints in the fall, it makes an eye-stopping picture as a background for low, yellow-flowered shrubs such as Oregon grape. It's spiny branches make it a barrier to be reckoned with, so plant it wherever you want to say: "No Traffic."

The deciduous Japanese barberries lose their showy leaves in winter, but they more than make up for that by holding their vivid, scarlet berries until spring growth starts again. When cut for display in the house, the berries last for weeks.

A HARDY, compact shrub that grows to about five feet and as wide, the Japanese barberry is available with green leaves that will turn yellow, orange and red in the fall.

A showy variety of this shrub, the "red-leafed Japanese barberry," is decorated with bronzy-red foliage all summer, then turns a deep amber in cool weather. Both make excellent foundation shrubs.

A miniature form of the red-leafed Japanese barberry called "Crimson Pygmy" is making a reputation for itself as a delightful foreground for gray-green shrubs such as junipers. Bead-like scarlet berries set close to the low branches give it winter landscape value in many situations.

All barberries prefer sun, they are not particular about soil, and since they are hardy, winter temperatures are not a factor.

Just A Touch Of Gray Will Add Distinction

Wherever you want to add a soft, glowing quality to your garden, you can't do any better than the gray-foliaged plants.

Most of them are drought-resistant and thrive on little care, so you can plant them with confidence that they'll keep their silvery freshness without very much help from you.

YOU CAN find trees, shrubs, ground covers and perennials in this subtle foliage color, and whether you dramatize a whole area with varying shades and textures of gray or just use a few groups here and there in special situations, you'll find they add distinction and harmony to the landscape.

Gray plants are beautiful massed alone on sunny banks, used dramatically against redwood walls, or combined with bright flowers in a border. Red-foliaged trees and shrubs are set off to perfection against a gray-foliaged background (red-leafed flowering plums and a bush germander hedge is one popular combination), and silvery - gray plants like Dusty Miller do wonders in toning down bright colors and bringing out the beauty of pastel ones.

If you need a low - spreading ground cover for a sunny spot, you might consider the silver-gray Snow-in-Summer.

You can plant it in poor soil and find it spreading enthusiastically to cover a warm, sunny bank or hard-to-water level area.

SILVER YARROW is another useful, low gray that's at its best in lean, sandy, dry soil. Its silky leaves form a tidy, compact mound that's perfect in precise patterned areas, or drifted in the open border or rock garden.

One of the best perennials for contrast in flower borders, edgings or low hedges is the popular, silvery-white Dusty Miller. The soft, white, velvety foliage is especially beautiful at night, and the bright yellow flowers add color in summer.

No garden should be without lavender, if only for its delightful fragrance. But the cool, gray-greens of some of the new, compact varieties have charming landscape value as well. Use them as informal, low hedges, on banks or in borders.

A Garden Screen Is Invaluable

Growing window sizes and shrinking home lots have made screens the homeowner's best friend.

Of course everyone recognizes the role screens play in guarding the home's privacy, both in the garden and inside the house.

But equally important to this generation is the need for view control. Here again the versatile and obliging garden screen comes to the rescue.

Properly designed and judiciously placed, screens can redesign a view by concealing an uninteresting scene and so allowing development of something more attractive.

FOR EXAMPLE, almost everyone is faced with the rather uninspired appearance of a strip of asphalt joining their garage to the city street. Even if the driveway and house are separated by only a few yards, a crisp little screen set on the house side of the driveway's edge will do a fine job of trading one view for another.

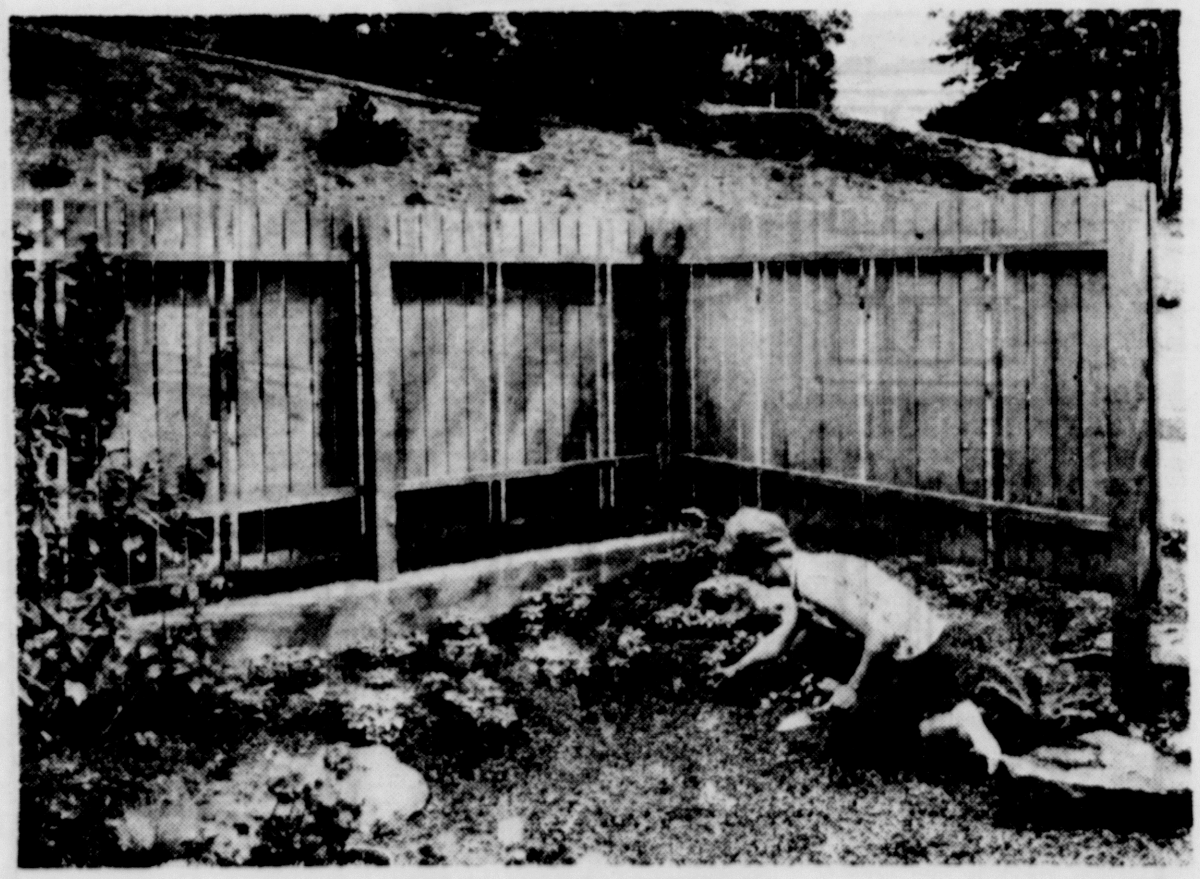

Naturally the screen should not become the focal point, but rather the means of creating one. In the case of the driveway, a tiny and pleasant court could be created between house and screens with a few choice shrubs, ground cover and perhaps a birdbath or feeders for bird enthusiasts.

An attractive pattern for the screens is important, of course, but it could be a very simple pattern. In some cases, an open style will serve the purpose, directing the eye while not actually stopping sight lines. However, if kitchen or laundry room windows are involved, a more solid style screen may be in order to prevent arriving guests from seeing into these work areas.

SUCH A SCREEN could be be built with western cedar one-by-fours applied vertically and spaced a half inch or so apart. An interesting pattern develops from alternating groups of five verticals with a vertical only an inch and a quarter square. Slightly more spacing is left on either side of the inch-and-a-quarter than between the one-by-fours.

Another handsome pattern for a low screen comes from setting cedar or Douglas fir one-by-fours between top and bottom two-by-four rails, edge out, with a one-inch spacing between each.

The driveway situation is only one of many that can be cured effectively with a garden screen. A tour through the house may reveal several windows with an uninteresting view that could be redesigned by a bit of good planting and a backdrop set near house walls, at the property line, or midway in the yard.

WINDOWS OVERLOOK the driveway? Here's how to redesign the view. First screen the drive with a crisp fence, here one-by-fours set in panels of five alternating with a piece an inch and a quarter square. Next develop a pretty garden court inside with green, flowering shrubs, potted blooms and rock. Paint or stain red cedar fencing to match the house.

When You Decide To Remodel The Garden

Here Are Some Tips That Help

Sooner or later, all gardens need to be worked over to eliminate undesirable shrubs and trees, reshape plants still useful in the garden and replant vacated space with new material.

Gardeners should go about this refurbishing of garden only upon careful thought of the goal to be achieved. The advice of a nurseryman or landscape architect will be most helpful, and is likely to save much time and money.

FIRST OF all—the objective. The garden may have become quite a chore to maintain, in which case low-maintenance material is called for. The garden may be a big factor in the sale of the home, in which case colorful plants are required.

Or, you may have become just tired of seeing the same old stuff! In which case you will want to replace the out-of-date plants with new varieties—and there are lots of them to choose from. Here are a few trends:

For utility and color: Hibiscus and lantanas. Hibiscus do many jobs besides dazzling the eye with colorful blooms from spring until frost. They fill vacant spaces with handsome rounded shrubbery, flatten into espaliers against sunny walls, and make good medium-height hedges.

LANTANAS have many functions too, from covering ground in sheets of yellow, gold and lavender to creating background of orange and yellow, pinks and cream and red and orange. Or you can create colorful mounds of white and yellow with the lower growing type shrubs.

In full bloom now, it is the very best time of the year to make a selection—and get immediate enjoyment from them in your garden. In areas of cold winters hibiscus and lantanas are treated almost like annuals, or frost-protected by mounding soil at the bases of the plants and covered with muslin.

For low foundations planting: The Raphiolepis (raff-e-ol'-ep-is) varieties, of which there are many, including the parent, R. indica rosea and its several forms: Springtime, Enchantress, Coates Crimson. Pink or red flowers appear in spring and again in fall. The foliage is neat and glossy, habit is low and bushy where they are allowed to spread, taller in narrow places.

FOR LOW maintenance: Selections of the native Manzanitas. Variety "Radiance" creeps on the ground, has tiny pinkish flowers and red berries. "Hookeri," grows a little taller, fills vacant grounds in a hurry! The mounding (Howard McMinn) makes an excellent grouping where plants from three to four feet in height are wanted. "Sentinel" provides an excellent medium-sized hedge. These plants require little care, once established.

For backgrounds: Italian buckthorn, an excellent tall-growing utility plant with glossy foliage and quick growth, easily sheared to stay where you want it. Variety "John Edwards" is particularly desirable — each plant looks exactly like its neighbor.

For eye-catching accent features: Trimmed Waxleaf Privet may be obtained in three-tiered "Poodles" as standard trimmed trees or sheared cones. Carolina cherry "Bright 'n' Tight" grows into compact pyramids with bronzy new foliage, shiny green when mature.

WHETHER YOU are remodeling your garden, or starting a new one, you can't do better than to add a sparkling holly to your landscape. The one shown here is called the "Dazzler." It lives up to its name by producing brilliant clusters of large, bright red berries in fall and winter. It boasts rich, green, highly glossed foliage all year.

September Is The Month To Start A Ground Cover

September is the time to—literally—cover a lot of ground.

Spreading plants you put in bare areas now will get a good root start in warm summer soil, winter rains will soon take over the watering job, and by spring, groundcovers are established and going strong.

If you are covering a large, sunny area such as a hillside, where low maintenance is a "must," the California Assn. of Nurserymen suggests sturdy, drought-resistant plants such as junipers, spreading pyracanthas, prostrate rosemary, ceanothus, dwarf chapparel broom, and contoneaster.

ANY OF THESE low shrubs, planted out now from gallon cans, will hold their own with the weeds the rain will bring, and need very little attention next summer.

For the added bonus of a rich display of brilliant berries in early fall, be sure to see the pyracantha called "Santa Cruz." For brilliant blue flowers in the spring, the ceanothus varieties "Carmel Creeper," "Santa Ana," and "Hurricane Point" are all fine ones to look for.

And if it's junipers you have in mind, don't settle for any old "juniper" as such. Visit your nursery and pick out one of the fine new disease-resistant introductions, bred to give dense, spreading beauty in outstanding new colors. "Wilton Carpet" is a sensational silver-blue to look for; "Buffalo" is an excellent bright green; and if the Pfitzer junipers are your favorites, take a look at the new ones in gray-green, green and gold or silver blue.

YOUR NURSERYMAN can show you many other fine groundcovers that can be planted now for various other landscape situations.

If you're covering up a parking strip or lining a driveway, the winter-flowering gazanias are something to keep in mind. And if it's a difficult area in partial shade, ask to see the new Dwarf Periwinkle varieties with their blue, white or purple flowers in the spring.

Give your groundcover plants a good start in generous holes with plenty of organic matter added to the soil, and keep them well watered until rains start.

GARDENERS' CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Winter-blooming annuals should be set out now. It is important to give them a long, warm growing season starting in early fall so they'll form buds before the soil temperature drops. Winter stock, snapdragons, pansies, violas, Iceland poppies, calendulas and Fairy Primroses are all available in flats at your nursery.
- Pick off faded flowers from tuberous begonias, but leave the flower stalk on the plant; it will soon fall off of its own accord. Continue with regular watering and make another light application of a complete fertilizer.
- For beautiful color in the shade garden from September to the first frost, set out Japanese Anenomes (sometimes called Windflowers) from gallon cans. The saucer-shaped flowers of this perennial rise on graceful stems two to four feet high and are available in white, shades of silvery-pink or rose.
- Remove all except one or two flower buds at the tips of camellia branches and leave about four inches between other flower buds that form below the tip. Keep soil moist so plants don't wilt or dry out.

Some Rules That Will Ease Your Lawn Care Problems

Here are some tips we think will reduce the time and energy expended on care of your yard and lawn:

1. Use gentle landscaping curves. Avoid sharp corners to make mowing easier and to provide a pleasing design.
2. Avoid unnecessary trimming by using brick mowing edges between lawn areas and plant beds, walls and fences.
3. Make mowing easier by keeping all areas, including terraces, walks and driveways, flush with lawns.
4. Use low maintenance ground cover in places difficult to mow.
5. Elevate high maintenance plant beds for easy care, and group high maintenance plants together.
6. Use gravel strip under roof drip lines to eliminate wasted effort at growing plants underneath.
7. Provide low maintenance plantings for hedges and beds, such as yews or privet hedge.
8. Provide ground covers beneath fruit, seed and nut trees so the droppings will be hidden from sight.
9. Use ample mulch to reduce weeding.
10. Eliminate trimming around such lawn obstructions as clothes poles, gas and water pipes, by using flush paving.

DIANA, the Princess of Troy, is played by Diana Hyland in the ABC-TV color special, "Hercules," to be seen Sunday at 7 p.m. on KGO.

WEEKEND SHOWS

A New Miss America & The Emmies

"Funful tomfoolery" is the category into which a couple of special telecasts scheduled for this weekend fall.

Tonight at 7 o'clock the CBS-TV network and KPIX will cover the "Miss America Pageant" festivities from Atlantic City, N. J., with Bert Parks again the on-stage master of ceremonies and with Bess Myerson as the broadcast commentator.

Tomorrow at 10 p.m. the NBC network and KRON will present the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences "Emmy" awards with Danny Thomas and Sammy Davis Jr. as hosts and a battery of TV luminaries as the "presenters."

Also unusual this weekend:

SATURDAY: "Secret Agent" with Patrick McGoohan, easily the best of some very lean summer programming, completes its seasonal run of British-style international intrigue and adventure (KPIX, 9 p.m.).

Roy Rogers and Dale Evans plus Trigger and the Sons of the Pioneers host a repeat bill at "The Hollywood Palace" that also includes Shelley Berman, Billy de Wolfe and Jan and Dean (KGO, 9:30 p.m.).

Marin's Glenn Yarbrough appears on "Hollywood a Go Go" along with Jimmy Witherspoon, Jody Miller, Ray Peterson and The Impressions (KGO, 6:30 p.m.).

Best bet for the movie fans is the World War II drama, "Battleground," based on the battle of Bastogne. The 1949 picture has an all-star cast that includes Van Johnson, John Hodiak, George Murphy, James Whitmore and Ricardo Montalban (KRON, 8:30 p.m.).

SUNDAY: It's a big day for the sports fans. Football buffs can watch arch-rivals San Francisco 49ers and Los Angeles

The Best TV Bets For The Weekend

Rams in an NFL exhibition on KTVU at 1 p.m. Golfers can enjoy that sport's World Series from Akron, Ohio, on KRON at 2 p.m. Tennis addicts will be able to take in the national championships at Forest Hills on KGO at 2 p.m. A second NFL football game, the Washington Redskins vs. the Detroit Lions, will be carried by KPIX at 11 a.m.

Several series will emerge from their summer repeat doldrums to begin new seasons, including "The Ed Sullivan Show" which will feature The Beatles, the comedy team of Marty Allen and Steve Rossie, and the Manuela Vargas Ballet (KPIX, 8 p.m.).

Also starting new seasons will be "Branded" (KRON, 8:30 p.m.), Bonanza (KRON, 9 p.m.), "Lassie" (KPIX, 7 p.m.). "My Favorite Martian" (KPIX, 7:30 p.m.), "Perry Mason" in a time slot (KPIX, 9 p.m.) and Candid Camera (KPIX, 10 p.m.).

"Hercules" with Gordon Scott, billed as "a one-hour color epic," sounds unfortunately like one of those Grade B Italian movies, but certainly the color and backgrounds should be impressive (KGO, 7 p.m.).

San Quentin's chaplains will discuss their work and problems on "The Greater Service" (KPIX, 6 a.m.).

Erich Leinsdorf conducts the Boston Symphony in Mozart's "Minuet, K. 320" and Shostakovitch's "Symphony No. 10" (KGO, 12:30 p.m.).

Two new cartoon characters to star in programs to be shown this fall are introduced in "The World of Atom Ant and Secret Squirrel" (KRON, 6:30 p.m.).

"Is there an increasing tendency toward professionalism in school athletics?" is the provocative topic to be discussed by the "Problems Please" panel (KRON, 11 a.m.).

The interview shows include former Vice President Richard B. Nixon as the guest on "Meet the Press (KRON, 3:30 p.m.).

"Camera Three" begins a two-part dramatization of the life of the Italian poet Dante (KPIX, 9 a.m.).

Two very strong performances highlight the movie fare. Burt Lancaster will be seen in his role as Robert Stroud in "Birdman of Alcatraz" (KGO, 8 p.m.). And Audrey Hepburn stars in "The Nun's Story" (KPIX, 11:35 p.m.).
